BERKELEY, May 23.—Morrell is now believed to be fatally injured. Several others, it is said, will also die.

BIG MORRELL AIRSHIP AROSE END FIRST AND GAS ESCAPED; WHOLE THING DROPS TO EARTH

Builder of the Ship Is Badly Hurt

BERKELEY, May 23.—A sensational accident marked the trial test of the Morrell airship a few minutes before 12 o'clock today.

The great cylinder, filled with 485,000 cubic feet of gas, collapsed at a distance of 300 feet from the ground, falling in a mass and burying in its wreckage the crew and owner of the ship.

List of the Injured:

C. A. MORELL, inventor of Morrell airship, caught inside the rigging and crushed by one of the propellers; legs broken, seriously injured; taken to Roosevelt Hospital.

C. TRIPPLE, San Francisco, engineer engine No. 4, crushed by his engine; taken to Roosevelt Hospital.

JUSTIN BARBER, commercial photographer of Berkeley, riding in forward end of rigging, ribs broken; taken to Roosevelt Hospital.

W. TYSON, valve tender, San Francisco, jumped when car was within 50 feet of ground, badly lacerated, probably internally injured; taken to Oakland Hospital.

G. C. WALLIN, newspaper photographer, San Francisco, badly lacerated, probably internally injured; escaped more serious injury by climbing network from the engine platform on to the body of ship; taken to Roosevelt Hospital.

P. H. GOODFRIEND, first engineer, jumped before car reached ground; severely but not dangerously injured.

H. MILLER, valve tender; cut and bruised.

JOHN BURNS, riding on top of gas bag; bruised and lacerated.

Climbed Into the Netting

CHARLES P. HALL, commercial photographer, riding in forward network; bruised and probably internally injured; escaped more serious injury by climbing into netting of heavy engine. Hall was rendered unconscious by escaping gas, but revived.

JOHN PETERSON, assistant to Hall; bruised and lacerated, not serious.

W. J. FULNO, engineer second engine; cut and bruised, not serious.

JOHN AHERN, engineer engine No. 3; injuries not serious.

W. MOWREY, engineer engine No. 5, slightly injured. Ahern and Mowrey escaped by jumping just before the car reached the ground.

CAPTAIN PENFOLD, Australian aeronaut; crushed, legs

WOMAN GOES INSANE OVER BIG ACCIDENT

Crazed by the Horror

BERKELEY, May 23.—A sad feature of the airship disaster today is the fact that Mrs. Lillian Lewis of 2198 Shattuck avenue has probably lost her reason as the result of witnessing the accident. She is now suffering from acute hysteria and is in the care of several physicians. Mrs. Lewis was standing with her little 3-year-old boy and Z. T. Smith watching the ascension. When the balloon collapsed, she was partially overcome by the gas. When she recovered consciousness she was seized with violent hysteria and her screams were fearful to hear. It is thought that her reason is permanently impaired. Her little boy was partially overcome by the gas.

Shonts on His Way to New York

PARIS, May 23.—Theodore P. Shonts of New York will leave here for home May 27. Mrs. Shonts will remain with her daughter, the Duchess de Chaulnes, until after the birth of the latter's child. The Duke de Chaulnes died suddenly in Paris, April 23.

broken and seriously injured by engine. Penfold jumped into the rigging of the airship as it rose from the ground against the wishes of Morrell, the inventor.

J. V. RODGERS, assistant engineer; internal injuries; will probably die.

C. A. NELSON, cut about head, severely injured.

15,000 Spectators

There were congregated about the vacant lots where the ascent was made, at the corner of Kittredge and Grove streets, nearly 15,000 people.

As the big ship collapsed the entire crowd was thrown into a panic. Women fainted, children screamed, men shut their eyes, expecting to see the ship fall on the spectators.

By the merest good fortune a breath of wind carried the ship almost back to the very spot it had left.

Fourteen on Board

There were on the ship at the time fourteen people. Those injured were in the center of the keel, operating motors, and great difficulty was experienced in getting them free from the wreckage.

The entire police and fire departments and physicians were requisitioned on the supposition that there had been a calamity.

Overcome by Gas

As the rescuers pursued their work it was discovered that nobody was killed, but a new danger arose in the escape of great quantities of gas. At least a score of persons were temporarily overcome by the heavy fumes.

About fifty people cut the balloon to pieces in order to give it plenty of vent, and Robert Dibble, manager of the Golden Sheaf restaurant, had his hand ripped open and two fingers almost severed by the accidental slashing of a man beside him.

The balloon was advertised to go up at 10 o'clock. It proved a great attraction and it was necessary to install a squad of police to keep people from danger.

There Was Delay

The great canvas bag raised from the earth at that hour, but another hour and half was spent before the ship was cut loose, testing the motors and all ropes and gear.

It was just 11:40 when the order was given by Morrell, sitting on the keel behind the third motor, to cut loose.

The Collapse

The big ship was pointed east and west. It rose gracefully for a moment and at about a distance of 300 feet one of the guy ropes holding up the center motor cut its way through the silk bag.

In an instant the great cylinder was seen to collapse, the center sagging down and both ends falling on top of it. Gas began escaping in great volumes and in another moment it had fallen in a mass on the earth.

The Motorman

On the first motor at the front of the machine was Philo Goodfriend, one of the men who has been associated with Morrell for some time. He was overcome by gas and slightly burned, but was pulled from the wreckage practically unhurt. Vincent Penfold was guiding the second motor—he also was piled up in the wreckage and was pulled out overcome by gas, but recovered in a few moments.

Curly Triple was operating the third aeroplane and it was just a few feet ahead of him that Morrell was located. The huge machine fell on top of these two. Both were pulled out unconscious after ten minutes and hurried to the Roosevelt Hospital.

J. Ahern was riding on the fourth engine. He escaped with slight bruises and was able to go about his way after recovering from the effects of the gas.

William Mowry, a resident of Oakland, was operating the fifth motor and an aeroplane. His injuries consist of a few slight bruises.

SNAPSHOT OF THE BALLOON JUST AS THE AIRSHIP LEFT THE GROUNDS ON ITS FLIGHT UPWARD

Hysterical Women

A number of the spectators, especially women, were afterwards overtaken by hysteria, and it was necessary to call physicians to their assistance.

The airship is a complete wreck. The great canvas bag has been slashed to pieces.

Airship Promoter

C. A. Morrell, the inventor of the ship, is well known on both sides of the bay. He has been identified with airship promotions for the past three years. About a year ago in San Francisco he achieved some notoriety by losing a balloon he was building at Eighth and Market streets. He came to Berkeley about a month ago and began operations on the present ship on an extensive scale.

He leased a vacant lot at the corner of Kittredge and Grove streets and began to spend thousands of dollars in equipping his plant.

Chief of Police Vollmer and Fire Chief Kenny both made solicitations to Morrell to delay the ascension because of danger to the vast crowds that were about. Morrell, on the other hand, was confident of success. A few minutes before he cut loose he announced he was going to Oakland and San Francisco.

Aeroplanes Worked

The breeze was very light and the ship seemed for a few seconds to be able to navigate. The aeroplanes worked successfully, and it is possible that had the gas bag not been cut Morrell would have made a sensational ascension.

Morrell estimates his loss at $50,000.

Monster Balloon

The balloon was a monster, being 450 feet long with a diameter of 36 feet.

When filled with gas it had a lifting capacity of 14 tons, while the dead weight of the engines, canvas bag and men to operate was about five tons.

Morrell says that his ship was a combination of the aeroplane and the gas balloon. Below the huge canvas filled with gas was a keel upon which were mounted five 60 horse power automobile gasoline engines. These engines were placed sixty feet apart, and each operated a propeller and combination aeroplane. In this manner the car could be driven, it was figured, at the will of the man directing the flight from a steering gear in the rear. There was an engineer for each engine, ensconced in a seat directly behind.

Try to Stowaway

There were many attempts on the part of outsiders to stowaway on the airship and the police had to drag many off the machine. As it was, several unbidden guests did get aboard, but they paid dearly for their intrusion.

On the airship as it went up were two men representing newspapers, although but one, C. Wallen, Chronicle photographer, was supposed to be on board.

Aeronaut Penfold

Captain Penfold, an aeronaut who has made several ascensions, representing the Examiner, was a "stowaway" on the craft. He boarded it, so it is stated, just as it started to fly and without the knowledge of its owners. Both Penfold's ankles were broken.

Wallen had a badly bruised right leg.

Cost $60,000

He announced that the ship would cost about $60,000 when ready for flight. It was probably the largest gas bag affair in the world. When buoyant it looked like a huge sausage and it was so flexible that there were numerous prophecies of accident from the spectators who had assembled.

Miraculous Escape Of John Ahern, An Engineer

John Ahern, who had charge of the fourth engine, had a miraculous escape. He said to THE

VALVE MAN ON TOP TELLS HOW BIG BAG FELL

Climbed Over Canvas to Save Life

J. Byrte, a valve man on top of the balloon, whose duty it was to make use of the valve for the purpose of allowing gas to escape, if that became necessary, said:

"I had taken my place on the top of the balloon. There was no seat and I simply squatted. I was to receive signals from Mr. Morrell when he thought it necessary to let the gas escape."

"Before we had been up more than a few seconds I noticed the forward end of the balloon tip and at the same time the stern went high in the air."

"The next second the big bag split across the middle and then the balloon began to descend. The end on which I was sitting collapsed with the escaping of gas."

the balloon dropped and as the engines struck the big bag it rushed forward and threw me several feet out of the netting before I had a chance to step to the ground. I was scratched and jarred but not seriously injured."

Made His Escape, But It Was a Matter of Luck

L. V. Rogers, a chauffeur and machinist, who operated engine No. 3, resides in Fruitvale. He is but 22 years old and has a wife and baby girl. He said that and I was falling down in the fold of the big bag when I seized the netting and climbed around to a section which was filled full of gas.

That part also collapsed. I then climbed to another spot. By this time the balloon was about 50 feet from the earth. I climbed down the netting towards the ground, and as the netting struck the ground I climbed up again, so as to get out of the tangle of the wreck and in that way had to fall only about a dozen feet to the ground.

The center engine struck the earth with an awful thud and I escaped being caught in the swinging of the netting by only a few feet.

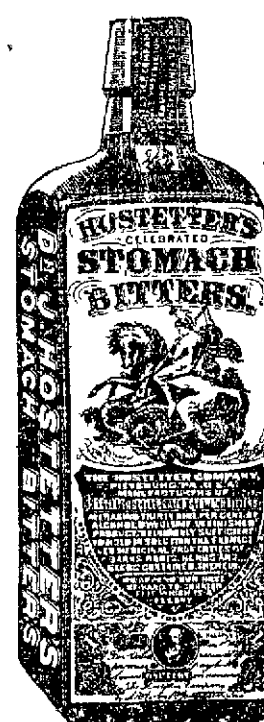

I was not injured.

he first noticed something was wrong at the other end of the airship and that he grabbed at the netting. That broke and he grabbed it again and climbed up the netting to the highest point on the balloon, thinking thus to escape the heavy machinery.

The machine went down with a rush and he was almost unconscious from the fall. He had enough of his senses left to stagger out of the way of the falling airship and was then taken in an automobile to Roosevelt Hospital.

TAKE GOOD CARE OF THE STOMACH

And it will always serve you well. Good health and happiness will be your sure reward. The best way to guard and protect the stomach against weakness or derangement is to take an occasional dose of this celebrated remedy,

HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS

It will sharpen the appetite, stimulate the flow of gastric juices and aid wonderfully in the proper digestion and assimilation of the food, thus preventing the bowels from becoming constipated. Persons who are now suffering from a bad stomach will be greatly benefitted by taking the Bitters regularly for a short time. You'll find it a splendid medicine to prevent Sick Headache, Vomiting, Sour Risings, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Costiveness, Liver and Kidney Troubles, Female Ills, Nervousness or Malaria, Fever and Ague. These letters positively prove the above statements.

R. T. MOORE, Nashville, Tenn., says: "I take pleasure in recommending your Bitters to those who have neglected their stomach and kidneys. It cured me after all else had failed."

J. K. ALLENDER, Paulding, O., says: "After suffering four years from indigestion and other stomach troubles, I was cured by your Bitters. Every person with a weak stomach should try it."

I moved to get out of the way of the machine as I heard something crack. I thought it was an explosion. I felt the whole thing tilting toward the ground and I did my best to get the long canvas cushions around me. I rolled myself in them to break my fall. "As soon as I struck the ground the

Captain Penfold Tells His Story Of the Accident

Capt. Penfold, aeronaut, whose real name is Ben F. Taylor, said: "The ascension was a good one, but soon after we were up one end of the bag began to tip. I looked at Morrell and saw him make his way through the machinery toward the higher end. He cried 'This way, boys!' His idea was to weigh down that end and thus allow us to go down evenly. At that time the machine was going down with a rush. I tried to follow him but before I knew it the machine hit the ground. I watched the heavy machinery above me and dodged it. "I blame nobody. I took the consequences by going in the ascension after Morrell had told me not to. "I want to say that Morrell kept his head throughout the entire concurrence." Penfold, or Taylor, has a wife and three children in Australia. Girl Spectator Run Down by a Grove Street Car In the excitement attending the fall of the balloon, Enid Hoffman, living at 1745 Bancroft Way, was run over by a north-bound Grove-street car. The little girl was running away from the excited crowd and did not notice the approach of the car until she was hit by the fender. One shoulder was dislocated and she has a lacerated scalp. She was taken to the Roosevelt Hospital by Officer Leonard.

Says the Balloon Did Not Seem to be Properly Filled

C. H. Davis was one of the employees connected with the inflating of the balloon. He was caught by one of the ropes when the balloon shot into the air. He was carried up almost a dozen feet when he disentangled himself and fell heavily to the ground, and while painfully shaken up, sustained no serious injury. He witnessed the collapse of the big bag and stated that the first trouble was noticeable in the forward end where there seemed to be a section which had not all been inflated. He says that the end was so loose and free from buoyancy that the silk wound around as if it were twisted by a hand. Guy Ropes Defective The guy ropes supporting the engine, only imperfectly kept them in right angles to the bag; as a consequence their weight was thrown forward and there was nothing left, because of the unusual weight of the forward end for the balloon to do except to split. "Before the bag split," continued Davis, "Morrell, the man in charge, saw that there was something wrong. My impression is that all the ropes which had bound the balloon to the earth had not been let go simultaneously.

Signal Misunderstood

"Morrell waved his hands and shook them a signal to the attendants on the ground, and at the same time shouted at the top of his voice to his assistants below, but he was misunderstood as to his signals, and his voice could not be heard by reason of the cheers of the thousands of people who witnessed the ascent of the balloon, and filled the air with a roar like a volley of artillery. "Just a second later, the balloon collapsed and the whole thing fell to the ground in a wreck such as you see it."

Doctors Are Busy

Dr. Rowell, Dr. Simpson, Dr. Woolsey, Dr. McIntosh, Dr. Peck and Dr. Beedle were promptly on hand at the Roosevelt Hospital and did everything in their power to relieve the suffering victims of the airship disaster.

PETER F. DAILY, COMEDIAN, DIES

CHICAGO, May 23.-Peter F. Daily, one of the best known comedians in the United States, died today at the Auditorium Hotel. He had been sick for about a week with a combination of jaundice, tuberculosis and pneumonia. He was playing a burlesque on "The Merry Widow," which opened at the Colonial Theater last Monday. He was scarcely able to take his part on the opening night and had to be assisted to his feet a number of times. The audience, however, knew nothing about his condition. He had a temperature that night of 102 and was unable to leave his bed the next day, but it was not thought his condition was at all alarming. During the week he showed signs of recovery and it was not until this morning that it was known his condition had become critical.

AGREE TO HAVE SUIT AGAINST HOTEL ENDED

Walter S. Mackay & Co., through their attorneys, Johnson and Shaw, filed a stipulation at the County Clerk's office this morning, agreeing to have the suit against the Hotel St. Mark dismissed. The turnpike company sued the hotel for $2,500, claiming that the amount was due for furniture supplied. HOTEL TOURNAINE, Fourteenth and Clay streets. Special summer rates. Table unexcelled.

FIRE CHIEF WAS WARNED OF DANGER

Morrell Was Not Allowed to Make Ascension in S. F.

BERKELEY, May 23.-Fire Chief Shaughnessy of San Francisco only yesterday had warned Fire Chief Kenney of Berkeley of danger from possible accident from Morrell's airship. Shaughnessy had refused to permit an ascension in San Francisco, he says, because he was afraid of damage to life and property from the great weight of the engine hanging from the keel. Kenney undertook to stop the test this morning, but on the assurance of Morrell that there was no danger he reluctantly consented to see the ropes cut.

RUEF CASES ARE ALL POSTPONED

(SPECIAL TO THE TRIBUNE.) SAN FRANCISCO, May 23.-Owing to the absence of Attorney Ach, who is on a trip to Bakersfield, the cases against Abraham Ruef on the calendar in Judge Lawlor's court were continued until Thursday next. Despite the fact that the court stated that he had agreed to a postponement on request of Attorney Ach, who has been busy for the past six weeks with the trial of a cast before Judge Duelling, Assistant District Attorney O'Garra was insistent that the matter go over only until Monday. He said that the prosecution was desirous of setting one of the cases for immediate trial, although they had not yet formed definite plans. Judge Lawlor, however, stated that he would not hear the cases until Thursday and intimated that he might then consent to a further continuance if Ach were still away.

FOOTHILL SECTION GROWTH SHOWS CITY'S PROGRESS

Chain of Homes Joining the Whole City

It is through home-building that great communities grow, and today no more striking illustration of the growth of Oakland could be given than is manifested in the beautiful development of the beautiful foothill section which girdles this city to the north and east. Gradually but surely the wonderful chain of homes beginning with the beautiful Piedmont District is circling these flower-verdured foothills. Perhaps the most marvelous growth in these outlying suburban districts which are within a few minutes car ride of the heart of the city, has been the development of the Fourth Avenue Terrace district. In this charming residence section homes are springing up like magic and all the modern civic improvements are quickly assuming shape and form. And yet but a few months ago this new and beautiful addition to the city of Oakland was a region of fields and forest glades. Its Many Advantages. The advantages presented by Fourth Avenue Extension to the home-seeker or the investor are manifold, and the opening of this tract signifies a new epoch in the realty development and home-building of this community. In the first place, the lots are very low in price, and the terms of purchase are so liberal that they come within the means of any wage-earner. All you have to do to secure one of these lots, is to pay down ten per cent of the purchase price and monthly payments of one per cent a month, an amount that even on the high-priced lots is practically insignificant. The lots are of good size, and the purchase price includes all improvements. If you buy a lot in Fourth Avenue Terrace Extension, you will have no street improvements to pay for and no interest or taxes until 1910. These improvements include macadamized streets and sidewalks, cement curbs, gutters and sewers, electric car-line, and the right of way for the Key Route, which has already been purchased and surveyed, crosses the tract in a transverse direction. On its completion, it will be possible for the residents in the Fourth Avenue Terrace Extension district to reach San Francisco in thirty-five minutes. To Have Schools. An Oakland public school will be situated on the northeast corner of Thirteenth avenue and Milbury street, this site having already been donated by the city. A large brick school is now available at the corner of Thirteenth avenue and East Nineteenth street and the Fruitvale school is within ten minutes walk of the east end of the tract. The California College, an accredited preparatory school for the California University, is situated on Fourteenth avenue within ten minutes walk of the tract. Pupils desiring schooling in Oakland, the Fourth Avenue car runs within a block of the Lincoln school and within three blocks of the Oakland High School. This new residence tract is being placed on the market by Wickham Havens Incorporated, and they will gladly take you out to see these lots at any time that will suit your convenience if you will call at their office, 1212 Broadway, Oakland, where autos are always in waiting.

SOCIETY GRACES TRACK AT FABIOLA BENEFIT

Fabiola Day at the Emeryville race track this afternoon was the great success which always attends the public benefit occasions planned for the Fabiola Hospital. The directors and members of the hospital association have a way of carrying success into every enterprise and the annual Derby day has long been one of the most popular and profitable outings given for the hospital fund. There has been a vigorous protest, however, from church and pulpit but the women of Fabiola have thought fit to carry out their usual arrangement for the annual day at the track. Society Turns Out. On every occasion when Fabiola Hospital was to reap the benefit the generous public has responded and the efforts of those interested in the progress of the institution have been rewarded with a substantial return. This afternoon was no exception to the rule, for several hundred society people from this city with many from San Francisco and elsewhere attended the annual event at the racing course. Prominent Women. The Fabiola Hospital Association is composed of many prominent society women and philanthropic workers with the following names on the list of membership with many others: Mrs. Isaac L. Requa, Mrs. Oscar Fitzgerald, Mrs. John Long, Mrs. Remi Chabot, Mrs. John Yule, Mrs. J. P. H. Dunn, Mrs. David Easterbrook, Augusta Schilling, Mrs. John Shuer, Mrs. Wallace Emerson, Mrs. Alvin D. Wilson, Mrs. Q. A. Chase, Mrs. L. N. McChesney and many others.

UNION NATIONAL IS SUED FOR $162,700

Serious Charges Made Against Agent of Bank

A suit for $162,700 damages was filed this morning against the Union National Bank of this city. Warren B. English and Charles F. Haney, by Alfred W. Burrell and the Burrell Construction Company and in the complaint serious charges are made against Haney and Charles C. Walcott, Jr., army quartermaster at Whipple Barracks, Prescott, Arizona. In the complaint it is alleged that Warren B. English on August 15, 1908, obtained a contract from Walcott to erect twenty-four buildings for the government at Whipple Barracks. This contract, it is claimed, was sub-let to the plaintiffs in the present action. It is alleged that English, acting as an agent for the Union National Bank of this city, agreed to furnish the contractors all the money necessary to carry on the work. Trouble Started. The plaintiffs allege that when J. Dalzell Brown bought the controlling interest in the bank, that English was superceded as superintendent of the construction of the barracks. At this juncture, it is alleged, the damage to the plaintiff commenced and in the complaint filed today there are eleven causes of action. Haney is accused, in the complaint, of having misappropriated $5,000 to his own use and to have acted in collusion with Walcott to the injury of the plaintiff. In the first cause of action it is claimed that Haney interfered with the plaintiff in securing material for the construction of the building, by making misstatements of the true condition of the work, damaging the plaintiff to the amount of $20,000. By collusion with Walcott, it is alleged, as a second cause of action, that extra work was framed up for the plaintiffs to do, causing damage to the amount of $20,000. In the third cause of action it is alleged that the plaintiffs were made to give their notes in advance for money received from the bank, which it is claimed caused the payment of unnecessary interest and caused damage to the amount of $5,000. Theft Is Charged. The remainder of the causes of action are as follows: Fourth-Haney ordered materials for work, before they were needed, causing $5,000 damages. Fifth-Haney misappropriated $5,000 to his own use. Sixth-Misuse of money by overpayment of sub-contractors; damage, $15,000. Seventh-Over-payment of sub-contractors for quarrying granite; damage, $500. Eighth-Engaging of Superintendent Hubbert, who grossly mismanaged construction; damage, $25,000. Ninth-Discharging of Assistant Superintendent Hinesfurther; damage, $5,000. Tenth-Changing by Haney, in collusion with Walcott, from use of sandstone, already on hand, to concrete blocks; $50,000. Eleventh-Converting by Haney to himself of brick machinery and $50,000 bricks; damage, $2,200. E. G. Ryker, attorney for the plaintiffs, said today: "The complaint in this action speaks for itself and explains most of the transaction and my clients are content to leave the whole matter to the adjudication of the courts. "Up to the time of the purchase of the controlling interest in the Union National Bank by Mr. J. Dalzell Brown my clients had no complaint to make against either the bank or Mr. English. When the Union National Bank, through Dalzell Brown, placed Mr. Charles F. Haney in Mr. English's place, then the trouble began and has been intensifying ever since, until it became apparent to my clients that Mr. Haney was wrecking the contract with the Government. "The object of my clients in this suit is to protect as far as possible its interests as sub-contractor in this matter, and also the interests of all creditors on the contract with the Government."

BURNS WILL FIGHT AT SYDNEY

Heavyweight to Meet Australian Boxer Lang and Says He Will Have Guarantee of $20,000.

LONDON, May 23.-Tommy Burns, the American heavyweight pugilist, has had no reply to the challenge he sent to Jack Curley at Chicago four days ago accepting an offer to fight Jack Johnson, the colored heavyweight, in Nevada on Labor day for a purse of $35,000. Burns to have $30,000-win, lose or draw. Burns says he will get $20,000, win, lose or draw, in Australia, and that he will start the end of June. MUSICAL SOCIETY IS REORGANIZED

The McKenzie Musical Society, numbering one hundred mixed voices which for the past thirteen years has entertained the San Francisco public with its remarkable concerts, has been recently reorganized in Oakland and will give invitational concerts every other month. The initial concert will take place at the Hamilton auditorium, Thirteenth and Jefferson streets, next Thursday night. UNIDENTIFIED MAN JUMPS INTO BAY

Would-Be-Suicide, Weighing 250 Pounds, Rescued Before Drowning. An unidentified gray-haired old man, weighing 250 pounds, jumped off the Broadway wharf this afternoon with intent to commit suicide. He was rescued before drowning, however, and taken to the receiving hospital. He is unconscious and doctors are working over him in hope of restoring him to life.

12 DOGS ESCAPE DISSECTING TABLE

Break for Liberty of Canines From Medical College Awakens Neighborhood. A number of policemen and the entire force of dog catchers in the employ of the city had the time of their lives this morning rounding up and capturing about a dozen canines which escaped from the Oakland College of Medicine and Surgery, where they had been taken for dissection at the hands of the students. At an early hour this morning, Captain Lynch received a dozen telephone calls in quick succession from residents in the neighborhood of the college saying that there were dogs to the right of them and dogs to the left of them as well as some in front of them. A squad of foot-footed ligawonts and the pound men with their nets were soon on the scene and things fairly hummed for a time. After two hours work the dogs were captured and taken to the pound. Now there is weeping and wailing at the college, for the dogs had recently been purchased from the poundman and the college is out the money paid for them. It developed later that the dogs had been let out for exercise and had escaped from the yard in the rear of the college through a gate accidentally left open. The students are taking up a collection today with which to purchase new material for their scalpels.

EDOFF'S APPLICATION SET FOR HEARING ON FRIDAY

Wants Agreement Between Directors of Bank Set Aside. The application of James P. Edoff, receiver of the defunct California Bank, for a suggestion from Superior Judge Harris as to what disposition to make of the claim of the bank against the Ventura Bank, did not come up yesterday afternoon as was expected. Judge Harris continued the matter until next Friday, when he will probably make suggestions. Edoff wants an agreement between the California Bank directors and the Ventura Bank, settling the claim set aside.

CLINTON IMPROVERS WANT MAYN EYESORES REMOVED

City Officials Criticized for Failure to Make Improvements

There was a largely attended meeting of the Clinton Improvement Club in the rooms of the organization at the corner of East Twelfth street and State avenue last night and there was a great deal of interest shown, not only in the improvement of that section of the city but also in the advancement of Oakland.

Nuisance on Lake Shore.

There was no concealing the fact that, at the same time there was considerable dissatisfaction with the manner in which public improvements were carried out in that quarter. Notwithstanding that there is in the neighborhood the chiefest charm of Oakland, namely Lake Merritt, which is at the same time the only inland lake of its kind in the country, it was asserted that the administration had established on its shores one of the most disgusting nuisances which could be imagined in the shape of a manure dump, which was a menace to the health of the community.

The officials who had been appealed to time and again to abate the same and, while promises to that effect had been made by the mayor and all the other public officials who had anything to do in the premises, the nuisance still existed.

There had also been an appropriation made for the building of a retaining wall for the purpose of keeping the east side of the park south of the Twelfth street from falling into the north arm of the estuary, yet not a dollar of that money had been expended for that purpose and there was no certainty when there would be anything done in the premises.

Talks With Turner.

I had a talk with City Engineer Turner and Mr. McKinstry. Mr. Turner told me that he was planning his best and that he did not propose to let a $15,000 contract on a bid for $30,000. Mr. Stanford continued to the effect that the money available for the building of the retaining wall had been placed in the park and boulevard fund and that from that fund from time to time for the maintenance of parks and other things, money had been drawn so that at the present time there remained in that fund $13,000. It was further stated that if a transfer could be got before the first of July, it could be paid out of the next year's taxes. If the transfer was not made, the same amount of appropriation would have to be made.

Turner Slow.

President Sanford said he thought that Mr. Turner had done his level best in the matter but that he was very slow.

Mr. Cobblelick, the secretary of the club, said that what the club had to do was to see that the appropriation was included in the next budget. President Sanford said he thought the proceedings of the Alameda County Progress Club to which the Clinton Improvement Club was accredited. He said that the larger organization had had under consideration a new charter for Oakland. This charter was fashioned after that of Des Moines, Iowa. Some of its features were away ahead of those now in the present charter of this city and some, Mr. Sanford said, he thought were very good.

City and County.

Jesse McShan asked if the charter referred to was one to be considered in connection with the proposed Greater Oakland.

Mr. Sanford, in reply, spoke about the towns in which had been developed a sentiment in favor of forming a city and county of Oakland. Oakland, however, could not take the initiative. That would have to be taken by the county. Outside the city limits and beyond a five-mile line from the proposed county seat. Mr. Sanford also stated that the subject of a city and county government of Oakland would be discussed at a meeting of the Clinton Improvement Club on June 2.

On motion of Fred Wilkinson President Sanford was elected to represent the Clinton Improvement Club on that occasion.

Dual Government.

In response to a question as to what was meant by a proposed city and county of Oakland, Mr. Sanford said that it meant doing away with the dual system of government which now prevails. This idea was supported by Fred Klump, who said that there was no reason why the city government should be kept together to manage the city and the county government should be kept together to manage the county. Referring to some of the near-by municipalities, he said that it was a big broke out in Berkeley the engines of Oakland were called there. There was a murder, the Oakland police there was a murder. It was the same condition of things with respect to Alameda. In his mind it was time to start the ball a-rolling in favor of a greater city and county with only one government.

Alameda Easing Up.

President Sanford said that, for a time, Alameda did not seem to favor the project but that some of her people had changed their minds on the subject.

Secretary Cobblelick said he was aware of the fact that residents of Alameda, individually, had changed their minds on the question. He also knew that many people of West Berkeley were in favor of coming into Oakland because they had become tired of the attitude toward them of East Berkeley.

Mr. C. O'Toole spoke about the other towns having to disincorporate and about the advisability of offering them some inducement to come into the greater city.

Consider New Charter.

Fred Wilkinson, acting on the question of President Sanford as to whether the club wanted any light on the features of the proposed new charter prepared by the Alameda Progress Club, moved that the club be authorized to request to send a member to a meeting of the Clinton Improvement Club for the purpose of discussing the proposed new organic law.

President Sanford said that it was the purpose of the Alameda County Progress Club to induce the people to accept the proposed new charter before the consolidation of city and county could take place.

Fred Wilkinson reported that certain sidewalks in Eighteenth street which had been petitioned for were being laid, after quite a delay, however.

Preparing for the Budget.

At the same gentleman said he thought it was about time to report about improvements desired before the beginning of the fiscal year. He thought there ought to be a light in Clinton Square. He said, as the darkest place in Oakland.

MAYOR UNDER FIRE AS TO BUYING OF PARK LAND

Denies That He Told Councilmen That Thompson Tract Could Be Bought for $35,000.

ALAMEDA, May 23.—The matter of the proposed purchase of the Thompson tract for a city park was the subject of a strained and heated discussion at a meeting of the city council last night.

President Loop said: "Mayor Taylor made the statement to the voters, before the referendum election, that the Thompson tract was offered to the city of Oakland for $35,000. Now, Captain Thompson demanded $40,000. It places this council in a peculiar position before the people, and, for one, I will never vote to pay a cent more than $35,000."

Wants $40,000.

Mayor Taylor said: "Captain Thompson told me that the tract had never been placed on the market for less than $40,000. I asked him if he would sell the tract to the city for $35,000, and he said that he would not. But Captain Thompson volunteered to give the city $5000, as a private donation after the sale, for the improving of the property, if the city should pay him $40,000 for the tract."

Councilman Magness said hotly: "I am absolutely certain that I heard the mayor tell this council that, if the people would vote for these park bonds, the Thompson tract could be bought for $35,000."

Matter Delayed.

The matter was referred for consideration to the committee of the whole, which was directed to report to the council.

Mr. Chapman's appointment as city engineer was confirmed and his surety bond of $2500 was approved.

The estimates of the various departments for the ensuing fiscal year were placed on file, except that the department of education had $100 additional time being granted in this case.

Upon motion of Councilman Noy, G. H. Mastick was re-appointed library trustee.

The police and fire commission selected permission to advertise for bids for a new fire engine. The commission will be asked to show, at the next meeting of the council, just what is wanted.

Councilman Probst urged the council to ask the Oakland Traction Company to restore the first morning and last evening cars, which were taken off last Tuesday.

Probst said that many commission men and laborers have been greatly inconvenienced by the taking off of these cars. He also stated that the street car company should provide an earlier service, so that the cars will meet the early morning trains.

To Meet Officials.

A resolution was adopted directing the public utilities committee and Probst to visit the Oakland Traction officials and try to persuade the latter to establish an earlier and later service to and from Alameda.

The clerk was ordered to notify Henshaw-Buckley & Co., of San Francisco, that the new gasoline roller, recently supplied by that concern, is not satisfactory.

The electric light committee was notified to be present at a meeting of the council next Friday night, when the council will demand that the committee either immediately furnish light to numerous citizens, whose demands for service have been ignored, or else make an official explanation for the failure to comply with such demands.

$600 for Contingent Expenses.

Mayor Taylor was voted $600 for his contingent expenses.

The bill board men were ordered to appear at the next meeting to explain why they have not paid their license.

Mr. E. K. Taylor read a message from himself to the city council which is given in part.

"I recommend that you determine, as soon as possible, what provision (other than the right-of-way) you deem desirable to have inserted for an ordinance granting a franchise for an electrical railway prayed for by the Southern Pacific Company."

Last Damrosch Concert Tonight

BERKELEY, May 23.—The last of the series of the New York Symphony Orchestra under the leadership of Walter Damrosch will be heard this evening in the Hearst Greek Theater. The concert will be held last evening in Wilkins hall. Because of the recent death of Miss Mary A. Shell the ceremonies were slightly postponed.

DAMROSCH ORCHESTRA AT GREEK THEATER

The great Damrosch Orchestra will give the finest program of music ever offered in this state at the University of California's Greek Theater tonight.

Mr. Damrosch, the conductor, will play Schumann's "Night Song."

The entire program is one worth going miles to hear and a great crowd will undoubtedly throng the great auditorium which has become world renowned.

The mayor regarding a number of matters which he thought ought to be remedied and that the mayor had suggested to him that he be paid for the last four months he would see such a change in the condition of things as would surprise him. That suggestion had been made in a letter and that was eight months ago and no change had taken place since then.

Mayor Taylor said that he had suggested to the street committee that they should be asked to look into the matter of the proper condition of the streets and report at the next meeting. President Sanford and Secretary Cobblelick said that they would look into the condition of the streets and report at the next meeting.

PIEDMONT CAN'T USE OAKLAND SCHOOLS, SAYS ATTORNEY

But It Must Pay Taxes for Educational Purposes Just the Same

Piedmont, through incorporation as a separate and apart from the city of Oakland, has, according to a decision handed down this morning from the City Attorney's office at the request of City Superintendent of Schools McClymonds, placed herself in an embarrassing position so far as school facilities are concerned. It would appear from the decision of the children of the residents of Piedmont are out in the cold, so far as education is concerned, provided they are not sent to private institutions of learning.

By incorporating Piedmont, under the law governing such matters, it has itself out of the Oakland school district and, as a separate school district of its own, Piedmont, however, made no provision for the establishment of schools. Although Piedmont can no longer avail itself of the Oakland school facilities, the property in the newly incorporated town is still liable for taxes to pay the bonded indebtedness of Oakland and the interest thereon incurred while Piedmont was in the Oakland district. Besides this, the property embraced in this new and fashionable district must pay state and county taxes, including such propositions as may be made for school purposes, but under existing circumstances, Piedmont is obliged to make the payments without any benefit being derived.

Piedmont is not troubled alone over this perplexing school question, but is also in a quandary as to sewer facilities and proper fire protection. In time of fire there is no apparatus to speak of available, and the residents are obliged to form bucket brigades.

McClymonds was anxious for a decision concerning the school affair and now sees his way clear to make a saving in the department by being saved the trouble of providing accommodations for the children of the residents of Piedmont who have formed a district of their own.

FROM STAGE TO PRISON WIFE SENT TO CELL FROM BABE TO CELL

Vaudeville Actor Arrested at Charge of Insanity by Husband, Says Her Spouse Has Threatened Her Life.

Herbert Cundie, a vaudeville actor, but at present employed as a carpenter on the Sullivan-Blyden building, San Francisco, was taken into custody at 1:30 this morning by Policemen McDonald and Stevenson of that city on a warrant sworn out by his child wife before Judge Quinn yesterday, charging him with threats against her life.

A peculiar state of affairs developed this morning in the examination of Mrs. Catherine Barnes, charged with insanity, before Superior Judge Harris. Mrs. Barnes was arrested at her home in Alhambra, on complaint of her husband, E. W. Barnes, who claimed that his wife threatened to kill him. He alleges she thought of him as about to be taken from her home and put in a straitjacket. Mrs. Barnes, her husband also claimed, thought that she was about to die and that she was to be cremated.

This morning it developed at the hearing that a child was born to Mrs. Barnes about two weeks ago and that despite this fact, her husband had her taken from her home and her baby, and locked up in the insane ward at the receiving hospital.

Doctor Advises. Judge Harris asked Barnes why he had taken this action and he stated that he had been told to do so by Dr. John Fern. Dr. Barnes declared that his wife had often thought she was dying while in one of the spells. The husband declared that he was too good to have his wife attended by a nurse and that he had to care for her most of the time while she was ill. He said that he was often kept up all night by his wife's cries for help and that he obtained but little sleep, so that it was hard for him to go to his work at an early hour in the morning.

Judge Harris and the members of the insanity commission declared that Mrs. Barnes is sane and she was ordered discharged from custody. Barnes, in an anxious way, asked what he should do, but Judge Harris said that he was powerless to offer any suggestions.

Promised a Spanking.

The Cundies are the people who, several months ago, obtained a great deal of notoriety by declaring that the house in which they lived, 1014 E. 14th street, was haunted. Her father was extremely indignant at this attempt of the young couple to advertise themselves as actors. At the time he threatened to spank his daughter because she stories they told of ghosts in the house and to a general outburst of roars upon whom the old couple partially depended for their living.

Pleds for Forgiveness. Mrs. Cundie visited the Captain of Detectives Peterson this morning and turned over a letter she received from her husband today. In the letter Cundie asked forgiveness and calls his wife's attention to the Scriptures, saying she should be willing to forgive him as the Savior had forgiven the sinners of all who claimed to be penitent for his act and said if forgiven he would mend his ways.

TO GO TO TRIAL IN DIVORCE SUIT

Sensational Disclosures Expected in Examination of Martin Madison Against Wife.

The divorce suit of Martin Madison, a prominent resident of Hayward, against Mrs. Jewel Madison, will probably go to trial in the near future, as the preliminary skirmishes of the lawyers were disposed of last night by Superior Judge Melvin.

Judge Melvin overruled the demurrer to the amended complaint, which it was complained by the defense did not show a cause of action. The motion to strike out certain portions of the amended complaint was granted. It was claimed by the defense that this complaint contained superfluous pleadings.

Madison charges his wife with cruelty, claiming that she has nagged him constantly and that by her conduct to his relatives she has caused him great mental worry and suffering. The couple are well known in Hayward and it is said the testimony in the trial will be sensational.

CHILDREN WILL BE PUT IN CONVENT

Judge Harris Makes an Order Regarding the Two Little Coward Girls.

Superior Judge Harris this morning ordered that Nettie and Phyllis Coward, minor children of H. C. Coward, the prominent salt magnate, and his divorced wife Mrs. Edna Coward, be placed, temporarily, in the Lady of the Sacred Heart Convent in this city. The children are to be kept in the convent pending the final settlement of Coward's petition for the custody of the children.

Coward applied for the custody of the children claiming that his former wife, to whom custody, they were given at the time the interlocutory decree of divorce was awarded to her, is not a fit person.

Mother Does Not Appear. This morning Attorney White, counsel for Mrs. Coward, appeared in court and said that his client was too ill to appear in court, and asked for a continuance of the case. Judge Harris then continued the case until next Friday, at which time he ordered her evidence on Coward's petition will be taken.

Judge Harris ordered that both Coward and his wife be allowed to see the children at the convent and that Coward pay for their maintenance at the school. He was also directed to pay his former wife $100 a month for maintenance of the children. The children are to be taken to the convent before 5 o'clock this afternoon.

$498 BOUQUET GOES TO CHARITY

Sweetpeas Contain Check to Be Devoted to Work Among Girls and Women.

CHICAGO, May 23.—The most valuable bunch of blossoms ever handed as a gift to a person was received yesterday by the House of the Good Shepherd in this city. The value was $498.71 in cash.

The bouquet, composed of gorgeous multi-colored sweet peas, was presented by a delegation of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Good Shepherd, headed by Mrs. P. Cavanaugh. Forming an integral part of the bouquet, but hidden among the petals was concealed a check for $498.71, which $500 is the proceeds of an address on charity recently held under the auspices of the auxiliary by Archbishop Glennon of St. Louis. The total sum is to be devoted to the furtherance of the House of the Good Shepherd and work among women and girls.

DRUNKENNESS A Curable Disease

Eminent Physicians and Scientific Men Agree That It Should be Treated as Such.

BRYAN AND BANKERS TILT

Democratic Leader Declares Banking Laws Not Enforced During Panic and Financiers Do Not Deny Charge.

CHICAGO, May 23.—A spirited fight between William J. Bryan and James B. Forgan, president of the First National Bank of Chicago, was a feature last night at the dinner of the Bankers' Club of Chicago in the Auditorium Annex. Bryan, in the course of an address to the bankers, said:

"It appeared in the Walsh case here in Chicago that the law as to loaning by National Banks is directory only, and that no penalty is attached for the loan of more than ten per cent of the bank's capital and surplus to one individual—no penalty, at least, except such as may be imposed in the discretion of the comptroller. And what is the situation? If a bank loans more than the prescribed ten per cent it is notified not to do it again. If the bank continues to loan more than ten per cent it is again notified not to do it again. If it keeps on, it keeps on being notified. Am I not right?"

Bankers Laugh.

A coterie of bankers and business men in the rear of the room laughed.

This was too much for Forgan. The president of the First National Bank rose indeed showing several indications in other parts of the speech of not being in accord with the speaker.

Forgan raised his hand deprecatingly. "But the law has been changed," said Forgan, who apparently did not hear Bryan use the words "capital and surplus" in lending up to his point. "The law now forbids loaning ten per cent on capital and surplus."

"And is there any penalty?" demanded Bryan in an aggressive voice, and turning to look at Forgan, who sat to his right, four seats away, at the speaker's table.

"There is no penalty," said Forgan, "but the law is now enforced."

Was the Law Enforced?

Bryan gathered himself together, leaned forward and extended his arm into his fighting position.

"Will any one tell me that the law was enforced in New York during the panic?" he cried.

He waited. There was no answer.

Forgan said nothing.

"I will stake my reputation," cried Bryan, more vehemently than before, and pointing to the fact that the law was not enforced in New York during the panic.

Another pause. The room was entirely quiet. Bankers looked at Bryan. Forgan looked at the pink carnation before him. Bryan regarded the chandelier.

"And I will say further," resumed Bryan smilingly, "that if the law had been enforced in New York during the panic, the panic would have been a great deal worse."

Atmosphere Clears.

Everybody laughed at that, including Forgan, and the atmosphere became

HAS FULL FAITH IN OAKLAND'S FUTURE

Louis Schwartz Shows in Substantial Way His Confidence in This Progressive City

Another evidence of Oakland's steady development is found in the large investment which Louis Schwartz is making in the old-established Lion Clothing Company, which he has just bought out absolutely. Mr. Schwartz has been the general manager of the Lion for several years and is so thoroughly convinced of Oakland's assured future that he has determined to make the store of the new Louis Schwartz company the handsomest clothing store for men and boys in California.

To Purchase Stock.

Mr. Schwartz left for the East Thursday night to purchase personally the immense stock of new goods necessary to equip thoroughly his enlarged store. He has just concluded a new lease with the John Nichol Company by which he enters upon additional possession of that large section of store space which was recently occupied as a restaurant. Contracts are being prepared for the remodeling of the entire store and no expense is to be spared in making it convenient, handsome and up-to-date in its every appointment.

Oakland Progressive.

"I am thoroughly convinced that Oakland will continue to grow with rapid strides," said Mr. Schwartz before he left. "I have bought out the entire interests of the Lion Clothing Company and on my return from the East in a few weeks, the architects will begin the remodeling. I shall have one of the largest stores on the coast and none will excel it in its interior arrangements."

"I have ordered the entire stock of the Lion Clothing Company marked down to such sensational figures that it will be entirely cleaned out. The plans for my new store are already worked out and while East I shall select the most modern fixtures that I can find."

Big Commercial City.

"Oakland is now a big commercial city and a very safe place for any kind of legitimate business investment. You may be quite sure that while I am away I shall lose no opportunity to tell everybody I meet just what a city of opportunity we have in Oakland, Cal."

Bryan then proceeded to unfold his theory that the criminal law should be applied to bankers who infringe the ten per cent provision.

"In my most emphatic belief," he said, "it should be made a criminal offense for a banker to loan more than ten per cent of the capital and surplus to one person. The criminal law should be applied to such a person. Don't you agree with me?"

Depositors Agree.

"Well," he continued, "whether you agree with me or not, let me tell you that 10,000,000 depositors will agree with me on this proposition."

Bryan declared for the guaranteed banking system, such as Oklahoma has, where every bank stands sponsor for every other bank. He said that unless such security were offered to depositors to prevent them from banking with the government by buying postal orders or from sending their money to Europe to be banked in one of the government banks there, this country would be forced to yield to the demand for a postal savings bank.

DENY THAT THERE IS TROUBLE

President Roosevelt Nails the Canard Regarding Differences Between Himself and General Bonaparte Over the N. Y. and New Haven Railroad.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—The White House today made official denial of a story that serious differences arose between the president and Attorney General Bonaparte on the question of bringing suit against the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, the story going so far as to say that Mr. Bonaparte had threatened to resign.

President's Denial.

"The story is a mere invention. There was no difference whatever between the president and the attorney general over the New York, New Haven and Hartford suit. Yesterday morning attention was called from Massachusetts to the fact that the Massachusetts State court had already ruled against the trolley lines so far as Massachusetts was concerned and the suggestion was accordingly made that the action should be brought in other states inasmuch as the purpose of the suit had already been achieved as far as Massachusetts was concerned. The president put the suggestion before the attorney general and asked him to bring it up at the cabinet meeting, which was then held at half an hour off.

Discussed in Cabinet.

As a precautionary measure the newspapers that had made the announcement of the bringing of the suit were asked to hold it up. The matter was then discussed in the cabinet and it was decided that the action of the state court in Massachusetts would make no difference in the course of procedure, and the newspapers were at once notified that the announcement of the bringing of the suit would stand.

Everything Harmonious.

"There was no division of opinion in the cabinet and not the slightest friction or discussion of any kind between any of the cabinet officers and the president, or among the officers themselves. The suit in question was determined on some three months ago.

"The only question discussed yesterday was as to whether it should be brought."

ONE IS DEAD AND ANOTHER DYING

Wretched Fate of Two Vagrants Unable to Secure Supply of Morphine.

(Special to The Tribune.)

SAN FRANCISCO, May 23.—Thomas Whalen and Edward Everett, charged respectively with vagrancy and grand larceny were taken to the Central Emergency Hospital from the city prison early this morning suffering from the effects of morphine, or more exactly from the lack of it. Both men are old-time offenders, and have frequently been arrested by the police.

Whalen was in such a weakened condition that he died a half hour after reaching the hospital, and Everett's recovery is extremely doubtful.

The latter is facing a grave charge, and the police claim they have conclusive evidence against him. In the event that he survives his present illness, the surgeons say that he could not possibly spend a term in jail deprived of the drug which he has been in the habit of taking.

Valued Same as Gold.

B. G. Stewart, a merchant of Cedar View, Miss., says: "I tell my customers when they buy a bottle of Dr. King's New Life Pills they get the worth of that much gold in weight. It afflicted with constipation, malaria or biliousness, and I under guarantee at Osgood Bros' drug store."

ARMY ORDERS TWO OBSERVATION BALLOONS

Gas Bags to Be Made Out of Newly Discovered Vulcanized Rubber Material.

(Special to The Tribune.)

NEW YORK, May 23.—Captain Thomas S. Baldwin, who is building the new dirigible balloon for the United States army, has received an order to construct and deliver within sixty days two observation balloons for the signal corps of the army to cost $5,500 and to be built from a vulcanized rubber material he recently invented. The new material will last five times as long as the vulcanized silk now in use, the inventor says, and is much easier and safer to handle. One of the balloons is to be of 1,000 cubic meters capacity, and the other of 500 cubic meters.

Bad Attack of Dysentery Cured.

"An honored citizen of this town was suffering from a severe attack of dysentery. He told a friend if he could obtain a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy he felt confident of being cured. He had used this remedy in the West. He was told that I kept it in stock and lost no time in obtaining it, and was promptly cured."—J. J. Leach, druggist, of Wolcott, Vt. For sale by Osgood Bros' drug stores, Seventh and Broadway, and Twelfth and Washington streets.

"This is a well-kept path," commented the man who was inspecting the White House grounds.

"A man could print on this 'Some how,' sentimentally responded the guide."

HAPPY WOMEN

Plenty of Them in Oakland, and Good Reason for It.

Wouldn't any woman be happy. After years of backache suffering, Days of misery, nights of unrest, The distress of urinary troubles, She finds relief and cure? No reason why any Oakland reader should suffer in the face of evidence like this.

Mrs. John Mulver, living at 748 Market street, Oakland, Cal., says: "I have had more or less trouble with my kidneys for some time. They were very frequent in action and greatly interfered with my rest at night. My back was very weak and lame and pained me so severely that I was unable to get around. I doctored a great deal but was discouraged at my lack of success in finding relief. While suffering severely Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my attention, and I procured a box. I used them carefully as directed, and the improvement in my case was simply marvellous. I continued taking them and am now feeling as well as I have at any previous time in my life. It is a great pleasure for me to tell others of the merits of Doan's Kidney Pills and am confident that they will be equally beneficial if taken carefully by any kidney sufferers."

At the University of Cincinnati there has arisen a controversy between President Dabney and Professor W. H. Bawden of the department of philosophy. Dr. Bawden holds peculiar and unconventional views regarding the sacredness and binding character of the marriage tie. His views are not approved by President Dabney, who considers them immoral and un-Christian. Professor Bawden has accordingly been asked to resign, but he refuses, saying his private opinions respecting marriage are nobody's business so long as he does not publicly promulgate them or teach them in his classwork. Planting himself upon freedom of conscience and liberty of thought, he defies President Dabney to remove him and appeals to the court of public opinion.

Professor Bawden's views, if carried to their logical conclusion, would utterly destroy family life and the marriage institution as it now exists. His ideas became public through a disclosure of Mrs. Bawden, who says his views destroyed their domestic happiness and broke up their home life.

Mrs. Bawden says that the professor's views have changed since she married him, twelve years ago. They now live apart, and have no children to complicate the matter. There is no charge of personal immorality, but merely of radical views. He holds that comradeship should be the only tie between man and wife on the spiritual plane, and that where this does not exist separation should be made as simple as possible.

The only limit he would place on sexual promiscuity would be this ethical ideal of comradeship and the restrictions of stipiculture on the physical side. He insists that comradeship rather than love is the essential. He agrees with Plato, that the state should subsidize motherhood, and that the individual and not the family, is the proper unit of political and social organization.

That these views are obnoxious to the great body of men and women cannot be denied, but the question involved is not so much the soundness and propriety of the opinions as the right of a man in Dr. Bawden's position to hold them. His right to entertain such a belief is unquestionable, but should he be permitted to hold them and be a teacher of philosophy in a public institution? It is rather a delicate question to decide, but on the whole we believe President Dabney is right and Dr. Bawden wrong. Few men would care to have their sons and daughters taught the doctrines advocated by Professor Bawden, and many parents would prefer that their children attend some other institution than the one in which Dr. Bawden is a faculty member.

Thus the usefulness of the University of Cincinnati is likely to be injured by Dr. Bawden's presence, even if the morals of the student body are not impaired by the private views of the professor. President Dabney, of course, must conserve the general good of the University as the wholesomeness of life and the standard of morality in the student body. Hence for two reasons he considers the presence of Dr. Bawden a double injury.

However, there is a special interest in comparing the case of Student Fitch at Palo Alto with that of Professor Bawden at Cincinnati. In the one case the right of individual opinion, though properly and courteously expressed, was sternly denied. In the other, a teacher maintains his right to hold views that the mass of people regard as immoral and destructive of Christian civilization. The student must not think for himself, but the professor can think as he pleases about everything and hold to opinions which shock and disgust mankind.

Such is the irony of fate. An auto thief stole a $7000 auto in San Jose yesterday and he was driven to make his escape on foot.

Bill Taft weighs nearly 800 pounds, and Bill Bryan crowds the 250-pound mark. From this we are led to infer that the next Presidential race will be a high-weight handicap.

Science has it that it took man a million years to evolve from a clam, and if such be the case, it is a cinch that it would take just as long for our talkative politicians to devolve back into clams.

No one has been mentioned for second place on the Democratic ticket as yet. Probably it will be pretty hard to find any ardent statesman who is willing to drop into oblivion on the second place of a second place ticket.

Mme. Helen Morton, daughter of the late Levi P. Morton, once governor of New York, has announced her engagement to Prince August of Arenberg. Mme. Morton was recently divorced from Duc de Valonay. Probably Mme. Morton is a believer in the old saying, "the higher the better."

When a man is able to utter such sentiments as marked the passing of Governor John Sparks of Nevada yesterday, it must be held that the age of heroics and heroes has not entirely passed. While passing away the governor said: "I do not fear death; I have done my best; I am tired and ready to go. Good-bye." Good-bye, Governor, it's hard to spare your kind, but you were a good fellow here, and the chances are that you'll be a good fellow hereafter.

EXPECT 2000 NATIVE SONS AT GRAND LODGE SESSION

State Delegates Flocking Into Yosemite

Over 2,000 Native Sons are expected to attend the annual session of the Grand Lodge, which will be held in the Yosemite Valley. Delegates with their families have been pouring into the valley since Thursday and the large gathering, in addition to the regular tourist travel will make the place a lively one. Every effort has been made to secure the comfort and pleasure of the delegates. Tents have been pitched and furnished with comfortable bedding and an arrangement has been made for them to take their meals at a large kitchen which has been erected.

Those accompanied by their families will stay at Camp Ahwahnee, Yosemite and Curry, while the grand officers with their families will register at the Sentinel Hotel. The weather is warm there and the valley is green, making it an ideal place to camp for the week. A large pavilion has been built, in which the meetings will be held. On Tuesday there will be a grand display of fireworks, and music and dancing will add to the entertainment.

Judge Dooling, grand president, will preside. All the other grand officers will be in attendance.

To Elect Officers. The election of officers will not be contested in many cases. Charles M. Belshaw will be elected president, John McDougall will be re-elected grand treasurer and Charles H. Turner will again be elected grand secretary. E. F. Garrison, grand trustee, is the only grand officer from Oakland and he will again fill the office. There is expected to be a contest between Herman Lichtenberger of Los Angeles and Thomas Monahan of San Jose for the third grand vice-presidency.

ALL BELLINGHAM CHEERS DEPARTURE OF WARSHIPS

BELLINGHAM, Wash., May 23.—Promptly at 6 o'clock this morning the ships of the first division of the Atlantic fleet, under the command of Admiral Serry, commenced to swing on their cables, working their heads towards the open channel and twenty minutes later the Connecticut led the procession of white battleships across the broad expanse of Bellingham bay, bound through the channel for the rendezvous at Port Townsend, whence they will proceed this afternoon for Seattle. The hour was early, but the heights back of the water front were crowded with cheering thousands, waving a farewell. As each ship rounded Dead Man's buoy, "Good-bye, Bellingham," fluttered from the signal yard.

Destroy Tobacco Store. RICHLEY, Ohio, May 23.—Night riders last night destroyed the tobacco store of Walter Hook, six miles from Ripley. Hook fired at the men and in return they riddled his house with bullets.

Hayes was not present and had no intimation that anything of the kind was to be done. He never told Mr. Detrick or any one else that the delegates should be instructed for the League, and at the meeting of the central committee Mr. Lyon opposed such action because he believed in leaving the delegates free to do as they thought best. Mr. Detrick had evidently promised the delegation to the League, without knowing whether or not he could deliver it. And if he made the statement credited to him in the Spreckels organ it was probably because he found at Sacramento he had a delegation of independent men who were not to be hawked about as the cheap chattels of any man or set of men, and in his plight sought to fix the responsibility on the shoulders of Mr. Hayes.

JAPANESE GIRLS,
By the Thousands
WORK IN SWEAT-SHOPS

Japanese factory girls are employed by the thousands under the most calamitous conditions. They have no opportunities for education and the majority therefore can neither read nor write. They are housed in unsanitary, crowded, and immoral lodgings, with inducements to wrong on every side. The most successful attempt to better their lot has come in the form of a missionary board, but originated and directed by Shuhiro Onota, a Japanese business man.

Government inspectors have expressed amazement at what has been done, and have mentioned it in their reports so that it has become a model for the entire nation. In consequence a cotton thread spinning factory in Kyoto has recently erected a dormitory for its 400 operators and provided it with school-rooms, dining and reception rooms, and a Buddhist chapel, where services are held once a month.

During the five years of the original factory girls' home it has housed over 500 girls, much to the gratitude of parents and girls.

Queen Alexandra

Takes Pleasure in Classifying Her Immense Collection of Photographs

Queen Alexandra is said to rise soon after 7 o'clock when at Sandringham. She usually takes a cup of chocolate and then proceeds out of doors for a brisk walk, be the weather what it may. Her fast follow is a small, cheerful woman, over-looking the gardens. Then her majesty makes her way to her boudoir, which stands on the first floor in the center of her private suite. Here she transacts all her business, which consists of a surprising amount of correspondence and other matters.

When she arrives in her rooms the letters already have been arranged in neat piles by the Hon. Charlotte Knollys, who has been her royal mistress's greatest and most intimate friend for years. Lunch comes about 2 o'clock. Then, on two or three afternoons of the week, the queen visits the tennis of her estate, receiving the most generous and worshipful homage. On her return home she demonstrates that she is an ardent devotee of the "5 o'clock" and spends some time with her private secretary, the Hon. Sidney Greville, discussing business matters, signing letters and receiving any other members of her staff. This is said to be her majesty's favorite time of day. She spends considerable time arranging and classifying her immense collection of thousands of photographs that she has taken from time to time.

Dinner at Sandringham rarely is served before 9 o'clock. At a general rule, when there are no guests present, their majesties are joined at table by the ladies and gentlemen in attendance. Music in the drawing-room follows with a bridge table for the special entertainment of the king. The queen plays the piano with considerable skill and is an excellent musician. She retires comparatively early, to which fact, and her partiality for fruit, is attributed much of her fine health.

At Girl's Window; Angry, His Excuse

PHILADELPHIA, May 23.—Silhouetted against her chamber window the figure of a man clad in pajamas and grasping in his right hand a heavy club, aroused Mary Freas, a student, 18 years old, 92 Garfield street, Germantown, from her sleep after midnight, a few days ago. She called out to the intruder that he'd better go away or he'd be arrested.

The threat had the effect of causing the man to drop to the ground, but not before Miss Freas had recognized him as Daniel Lynn, 32 years old, who had been quarreling for some time. Lynn had threatened often to "have the law" on the Freas family, so they swore out a warrant against him the next day charging felonious assault at breaking and entry.

Before Magistrate Fitzpatrick, East

Chelton avenue, Miss Freas told her story, and as Lynn didn't deny it, he was held in $300 bail for court.

"We have been having trouble with this family for a long time," said Lynn, "and when I came home that night about 12 o'clock, my sister-in-law told me, just as I had arranged myself in pajamas and was about to go to bed that during the day they had torn an awning over one of our windows."

"My anger quite got the best of me when I saw that awning, and I clambered over the roof in the direction of the Freas house to take its value out of somebody's hide. I stopped at the first window I came to. When some one called to me from within I realized suddenly what a position I was in and fled."

SOUL KISSES Mystic Marriage Is An Ideal Romance, She Says Affinity Must Be A Real Psychic BEFORE SHE WEDS

NEW YORK, May 23.—Conflicting reports concerning the status of the Hermann-Stoddard "soul-mate" situation were issued by the two women principals in the case which is awaiting decision in the Brooklyn Supreme Court. The absence from his home at 5103 Fourteenth avenue, Borough Park, of George J. Hermann, a wealthy builder and real estate speculator, was pounced upon by gossip as an opportunity for revealing the "soul-mate" discussion.

Mrs. Hermann denied emphatically that her husband had eloped with Mrs. Elia St. Clair Nickerson Stoddard, wife of Captain Charles E. Stoddard, of the Ward Line. Mrs. Hermann said that her husband is in Boston on a business trip. She says there is nothing between him and the beautiful Mrs. Stoddard, and charges that Mrs. Stoddard is trying to break up her home.

Mrs. Stoddard has suits pending against Mrs. Hermann, her son, and Miss Laura Hermann for $10,000 each, for alleged defamation of character. Captain Stoddard has said to recover $10,000 damages from Hermann for the alleged alienation of Mrs. Stoddard's affections.

Mrs. Stoddard, who is living at the home of Dr. Pierce, a relative, at 985 Flatbush avenue, gave out the following statement:

"I am not yet prepared to say whether or not I will marry Mr. Hermann," Mrs. Stoddard explained that she used the word "marry" in its "soul-mate" sense.

"If he has progressed steadily toward the proper degree of psychic power, then I may consider his proposal," she said. "Should I say that he does not measure up to high state of spirituality, I will make him wait for another incarnation."

"I am of the firm belief that a mystic marriage of the soul is the ideal romance, but the world still is grossly material, and thus all unions should have some formal ceremony in order to quiet the ever-ready and gossiping public. Mr. Hermann is still afraid of the world, but I snap my fingers at such thoughts. My relations with him have been as pure as the holy altar is sacred."

Mrs. Stoddard declared that Mr. Hermann's kisses were "benedictions" and his caresses an expression of "God bless you." She said her husband had become angry because of her soul relationship with Hermann, but that she loved Captain Stoddard just as much as she ever did. A description of the "soul kiss" and other things, in more detail than Mrs. Stoddard gave, is contained in a letter dated March 18, 1905, and

WEDDING DATE.

The marriage of Alexander Hyman of this city to Miss Hazel Abrahamson will take place Sunday, May 31, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hyman in Sacramento. After a brief honeymoon trip the couple will return to make their home in this city, where the groom is engaged in business.

QUESTS AT LUNCHEON.

Miss Lily Breiling was hostess yesterday at a luncheon given at her home, and among the guests who enjoyed the affair were Mrs. Oscar Luning, Mrs. William A. Schrock, Mrs. Frank Leavitt, Mrs. Frederick Moore, Mrs. Charles Beasley, Miss Blanche Layman.

ENJOYABLE PARTY.

Miss Rose Isaacson entertained recently at an enjoyable party given for Miss Beatrice Barnett at the home of the hostess at 914 Fourteenth street. After an informal program of music a supper was served.

WHIST PARTY.

Mrs. H. J. Aikins was hostess recently at a whist party given at her home in honor of the departure for the north of Mrs. Fred Bowers. About a dozen friends spent a very enjoyable afternoon.

MISS MADDERN HOME.

Miss Marie Maddern, the talented daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Maddern of San Francisco, has returned from New York for a brief stay and has been extensively entertained by friends on both sides of the bay. Miss Maddern has been a serious student of the drama, and made her debut last season with her cousin, Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fleke. She has a wide social acquaintance and her talent assures her a brilliant future. Her mother, Mrs. Will Maddern, is leader of the dramatic section of the California Club.

DANCING CLUB.

La Belle Jeunesse Dancing Club held its last meeting at the home of Mrs. Belle Melquind at 1807 Russell street, Berkeley, when officers were elected for the coming year. The presiding officer was Henry Menge, and the new officers were elected as follows: Louis Giamboni, president; Miss Edith Snow, secretary; and Henry Menge, treasurer. The program of this popular club was C. Henry Melquind.

RECEPTION AT HOME.

Mrs. Carl Rhodin, formerly Miss Grace Mervet Cook, was the complaisant guest at a reception given one afternoon this week by the members of the Shakespeare Club at the home of Mrs. S. M. Haslett. Mr. and Mrs. Rhodin have been visiting Mrs. Carl Brundisch, but are making their home temporarily near Napa. They will return later to reside in Alameda.

KITCHEN SHOWER.

Mrs. R. A. Perry was hostess recently at a kitchen shower for Miss June Connor, who will soon become the bride of Perham Nahl. Mrs. Perry entertained forty guests, and each one brought a useful gift in the form of a kitchen utensil for the new home.

WEDDING PLANS.

The wedding of Miss Esther Corwin and Glenn Johnson will take place in June at the First Baptist Church in the pleasant collection of thousands of photographs that she has taken from time to time.

CHURCH WEDDING.

The marriage of Miss Marie Chesebrough and H. M. McKee will take place Tuesday evening at Trinity Episcopal Church, with the Rev. Clifton Macdonald officiating.

IN LONDON.

Mrs. Thomas Magee and her little daughter Katherine have reached London and are with Mrs. Denis O'Sullivan.

FOR BRIDE-ELECT.

Miss Amy McKee, the charming fiancée of Eugene Lane, will be one of the most popular bride-elect of the month. The wedding is set for June 11, and in the meantime a series of pleasant affairs are being planned.

airs are being planned for Miss McKee. William Bull Pringle entertained yesterday for the bride-elect at an elaborate luncheon, and several other favors are planned by prominent matrons in the smart set.

HILL CLUB.

The Hill Club had a most enjoyable meeting at the home of Mrs. C. L. Hooper Monday. "Mexico" was the topic and proved a most most interesting one. The Mexican national airs and other places were played by Mrs. Ains. Miss George Clark of Alameda described many of the places she visited while in Mexico and Mrs. H. G. Clark read a very interesting letter from a recent traveler there.

WEST OAKLAND HOME.

A special meeting of the members of the West Oakland Home was held Friday morning and arrangements completed for their tour to be held June 20 at Idora Park. Tickets for the park and for the dinner for that day will be for sale by members of the home. On the grounds attractive booths will be in charge of the following chairman: Mrs. Geo. Ryne, mystery booth; Mrs. B. N. De Leon, candy and lemonade; Mrs. N. H. Chambliss, sand-dip; Mrs. H. Cook, refreshments; and Mrs. H. B. Mohrman, ice cream.

Four Prominent Artists Are at Work Making the Selections

Winners of THE TRIBUNE'S baby beauty contest will be announced Sunday, May 31. The following named prominent artists are now at work making the selections:

WILLIAM KEITH, XAVIER MARTINEZ, RICHARD PARTINGTON AND PERHAM NAHL.

These artists have a big task before them. This they admit. The difficulty of picking out one photo from so many, and saying, "This is the prettiest of them all," must be admitted. So the artists decided they would take their time. It's a matter that cannot be hurried.

They are going over the great number of pictures carefully, setting aside possible winners of the first, second and three other prizes. These candidates for beauty honors will again be sorted, and so on until five are left.

Artists Nahl, Partington, Martinez and Keith are certainly well qualified for this difficult task, and THE TRIBUNE greatly appreciates their courtesy in consenting to undertake it.

Protection of Women In Lines of Industry By Florence Kelly

The decision of the United States Supreme Court in the case of the Oregon ten hours' law for women in laundries gives to women in Oregon protection that was afforded to women in England by the ten hours' law enacted by Parliament in 1847; for this decision merely sustains the Oregon statute prohibiting the employment of women in laundries, factories and mechanical establishments more than ten hours in twenty-four hours. They may work all night. They may even work twenty consecutive hours by beginning late and working ten hours until midnight, then beginning early and working ten hours until midnight.

In England the existence of the ten hours' law of 1847 did not deter Parliament from conferring upon women the municipal franchise in 1889.

Many in this country use their ballots increasingly every year to secure statutory restrictions upon their working day. The American Federation of Labor is at the present moment making a political issue of the failure of Congress to establish eight hours as the maximum working day for men employed by contractors to do work for the government of the United States.

One very strong argument for conferring the franchise upon women is that they may share in deciding what legislation they will have with regard to their working hours. At present they neither make such laws, nor elect the men who make them nor the judges who interpret, sustain or annul the laws. In consequence the protective legislation for women and children is cruelly inadequate in contrast with the laws for men.

WIFE WILL NEVER COME BACK; HUBBY SAYS HE STILL LOVES HER

NEW YORK, May 23.—If Sarah

Lieberman will come home to her husband Ossie and withdraw her suit for separation the latter herewith agrees always to cook her supper, wash the dishes, make the beds and perform such other household duties as the said Sarah will devise.

Ossie, a meek, patient little man, till recently was a prosperous east side merchant, but who claims to have lost his money and his wife at the same time, made these statements in the office of his attorney, Isidore

Scherer, at 68 Park row. Justice Hendricks decided that Sarah, who is suing Ossie for separation, was not entitled to temporary alimony of $10 a week and a counsel fee of $100; for the meek little defendant in the case had told a thrilling tale of being compelled by his wife to cook her supper when she returned home at 1 a. m., wash dishes, make beds—in fact, perform all the household duties that fall usually to the wife.

The Ossie considered himself aggrieved. Now, after three weeks of loneliness, he is sighing to have Sarah back on any terms.

"Yes, I cooked and washed the dishes for her. Why not? She didn't like to do it. And I can cook much better than she can. When I was too busy I hired a woman to do the work for me. My wife would never do it. She would go to her parents or to the theater."

"In one thing she was unreasonable. If I didn't wash the dishes after supper she would get mad. Sometimes I would want to let her go till the next day, for I would be tired. But she would not permit it."

"We were perfectly happy for six years. I gave her $25 a week for the house and about $300 a year for clothes."

"Then she left me. But I bought her a watch chain and she came back. She stayed three months and went away again. Then I bought her some earrings and we were happy once more."

"But now she is gone a third time. I have no money, and she says she will never come back. But I hope she will change her mind. She is a fine woman. I love her."

SOUL OF HER UNTRUE AFFINITY

NEW YORK, May 23.—Indignant at the thought of her "soul mate" being untrue to promises made and learning that instead of being a convert to her own beliefs and teachings he was not converted at all, Mrs. Elia St. Clair Stoddard of Borough Park, Brooklyn, who would do away with all legal marriages, decided she would never marry George J. Hermann, the builder. It was alleged that she had eloped to Boston with him.

Mrs. Stoddard, after denying the report of the elopement a few days ago, said she intended to wed Hermann if he made proper progress in the spiritualistic world. But within the last two days Mrs. Stoddard, through her medium, has learned that the builder had not discontinued his visits to his wife at Fifteenth avenue and Fifty-third street, Brooklyn.

Such a state of affairs raises the ire of Mrs. Stoddard, and when Hermann returned from a business trip to Worcester, Mass., on Tuesday night, she met him and demanded that they go to the Hermann house to get her picture, given to the builder some time ago. He balked when near his wife's home.

Then it was that Mrs. Stoddard spoke her mind to him.

Mrs. Stoddard also made public several letters signed "Cosmos" and alleged to have been written by Hermann. The letters contain many tender passages. Some extracts read:

"God has sent you here to do His work and He will not let you depart before that work shall have been finished. He has hidden you 'shine' and shine you shall. He will not allow your spirit to go home on Easter or any other day until He will say 'Well done, good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of the Lord.'"

"You will not be permitted to go away from me and everybody. If God has anything to do with you and me and our relations He would curse either of us who would now desert the other."

"Do you think Cosmos will be happy with you? You alone know how happy. My heart, soul, mind and all that is reaches for you—cries out in a very agony of longing for you. You cannot appreciate my feelings of distress when I read from time to time the words you employ to inform me that you intend leaving. If you wish me to take a chance on the future just leave me as you sometimes threaten to do. Dearly, I shall not hesitate a moment. When I called you on the phone Friday night I was prepared to do and would have done it before you could have left the telephone."

Mrs. Stoddard and her husband, a sea captain, will bring damage suits against Hermann.

PRETTY WOMAN RESCUED FROM OPIUM DEN

NEW YORK, May 23.—Olivia Fargo, as she calls herself, extremely pretty and seemingly refined, was rescued from an opium joint in Chinatown and taken to Bellevue Hospital. She was suffering from opium poisoning and morphinism. She had learned not only to "hit the pipe," but to use the hypodermic needle.

Miss Boardman and Miss Harkness took the girl in a private carriage to the East Home, where rescue work is done among the white girls who dwell in Chinatown or are caught there. Miss Boardman and Miss Harkness, a nurse at Bellevue, are among the workers in the "Home."

Olivia Fargo's beauty positively started the physicians in the hospital's admission ward. She is twenty-four years old, a sparkling brunette with fine eyes. She wore no hat and her brown silk raincoat could not hide the graceful lines of her figure.

She told Dr. Hooker that her father's name is Edward Fargo; that her maiden name is Olivia Ryan, and that her mother was born in France. When asked to give her own name the young woman said at first she would prefer to be known only by the pet name her parents gave her, "Baby." When asked

Just Why Honeyymoon Won't Be Passed in Colorado

It has been announced that the wedding of Miss Grace Chapin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Chapin of New York, formerly of Brooklyn, and William Beverley Rogers of Salt Lake City, Utah, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Evans Rogers of New York and Garrison Rogers of New York, will take place at Grace Church on June 1, says Town Topics, but I can announce exclusively that no minute of the honeymoon will be passed in Colorado Springs, where Mr. Rogers once lived and is so very well known. I might also add that there is one prominent New York family who will not be represented at the wedding, but that is another story.

Being a member of a great family has its disadvantages, for everybody in Colorado Springs got to know young Rogers during his sojourn there, and it seems no one could quite fathom the aristocratic airs that Mr. Rogers affected—affected because he hadn't a single air about him that even a resident of the breezy West would admit is aristocratic or that would seem to belong to any member of the prominent and highly respected Rogers family of which he is a member. Maybe that is why William Beverley has been passing so much time in the West. He is a very selfish young man; isn't so refined as his sisters and aunts, and isn't as strong on as strong looking as his husky cousins and uncles.

But, back to the story. The honeymoon of Mr. and Mrs. Beverley Rogers will not be spent in Colorado Springs because Mr. Rogers no longer cares for anyone or anything there, and because Colorado Springs affirms and declares that Mr. Rogers is neither missed nor loved. It seems that out there he got in bad, as they say on Third avenue, with Mrs. Hayes and her daughter. Of course, everybody in Colorado has heard of Mrs. Hayes, although she isn't either strenuous or worldly. Colorado has heard of her because she is the daughter of Jefferson Davis. Mr. Rogers singled out her daughter as one to whom he thought he would like to devote his attentions. Miss Hayes received said attentions so seriously that she reached the limit that they were engaged. But Mrs. Hayes and all of the friends of Mrs. Hayes put their heads together and decided that Miss Lucy Hayes would be thrown away on young Rogers, that she was in every way too sweet a girl for this New Yorker, who, they decided, had nothing but family and as for his family Colorado Springs agreed that no New Yorker, not even a Vanderbilt or Astor, could give distinction to the descendants of Jefferson Davis, and that the position of the Hayes family in the society of Colorado Springs makes any such suggestion laughable.

Then the beautiful Grace Chapin, and there is no denying that she is one of the beauties of New York, did a very foolish thing within a few hours after she had consented to become Mrs. Rogers. She called for a messenger boy and sent the following telegram to a friend in Colorado Springs: "Landed Billy R. today." This telegram got talked about and naturally made everybody out there furious, though they were amused at the same time to think that Miss Chapin was so apparently put up at the prospect of marrying into the Flit family.

Just now Miss Lucy Hayes is in Paris. She is studying art, and has been the recipient of many social attentions from people of note and high social position there. Also, Miss Chapin is in Paris. She, too, has received many attentions there that Miss Lucy Hayes could not have telegraphed East and South the glad tidings that she had "landed Billy R." Only Colorado Springs declares absolutely that Miss Hayes would never have sent such an undignified telegram. The West is called breezy, but it cannot hold a candle to some of the things done by some New Yorkers, including the Chapins.

WIFE: 'I Lost My $1200 Rings,' HUSBAND: 'Oh, I Don't Mind That'

CHICAGO, May 23.—There are husbands and husbands. This one doesn't scold.

E. G. Heath, president of the Heath-Wheeler company, lumber dealers, returned from Louisiana. The first thing he read was a newspaper account of his wife having lost diamond and other rings valued at $1200 at the Chicago Athletic Club. She took them off to wash her hands, she thinks, and doesn't know whether they were stolen or not.

"I'm sorry about that," said Heath when he met his wife.

"Now, Edward, I couldn't help it," she answered. "I don't think you ought to scold."

"O, I don't mind the loss of the rings so much," he said. "But the next time you lose any don't say anything about it. I don't like the publicity. Besides, I'm an old member of the athletic club and this sort of thing reflects on it. Put on your hat now and come with me and I'll buy you some more."

Then Heath went over to the Athletic club and said he didn't want anything more said or done about the rings.

Manager Wislitz of the club looked at the watch pipe and said the outlet was too small for the jewels to have disappeared through it. The rings were lost Tuesday. Mrs. Heath, who lives with her husband at the Plaza, had gone to the club for luncheon.

The Auburn agency report the arrival of two cars of machines.
 The Packard factory was built in the fall of 1908 with a small acreage and moderate amount of capacity while the growth of this standard machine in five years now demands a floor space of eleven acres with an output of '08 models all sold and orders coming rapidly in for the
 '09 product so early in the season.

There is no doubt that the mobility and comfort attendant upon the use of the motor car are the main qualities that appeal to the individual, and weighed against these are the cost of the expense of maintenance and up keep and the amount of depreciation. So there is without question an elimination in a general sense of the willingness to sacrifice large sums in proportion to the service given. In the examination of the subject we find that the average man who has a motor car is inclined to desire it as a means of saving, not spending money.

FUTURE OF THE FRICTION DRIVE.

(BY R. A. PALMER.)

To the unbiased mind it is becoming more apparent that the friction drive is rapidly gaining the confidence of motorists throughout the motor-car-using world.

It has been demonstrated that a carefully designed friction transmission, combined with a car of standard quality, provides a degree of flexibility much desired by experienced drivers.
 Its successful application, as is true,
 has been confined to comparative recent dates to cars of the lighter type only but the past few months have seen it in successful operation upon four and six-cylinder cars of the large size type, as well as upon light and heavy trucks.

A careful canvass among experienced car drivers reveals the undeniable fact that aside from tires the transmission and clutch mechanism is by far the most troublesome and the most expensive to maintain. Investigation will prove to the most skeptical mind that the friction system of transmission is the most simple. The question then resolves itself into one of capacity and efficiency only.

Laboratory data of the efficiency of the friction system of transmission is scarce like the data as to the actual capacity of the various types but it is true that there are friction driven cars of similar weight and power with other systems of transmission which proves more conclusively than laboratory tests that the friction system is not only a success but has advantages over those systems employing a multiplicity of gearing which realizes its highest efficiency only when new and in absolutely perfect condition and deteriorates rapidly with use.

The type of friction transmission used by one of the well known manufacturers shows an efficiency on high gear of over ninety two per cent compared with eighty-eight per cent of bevel gears when new and less than eighty per cent when worn. It is known that many users of cars with geared transmissions have endeavored to procure the friction transmission parts with which to rebuild their cars.

A well designed system of friction transmission embodies the following general advantages: Simplicity and flexibility of control with one lever great range of speeds freedom from shock in starting and absence of noise.
 They are fool proof and absolutely free from danger of injury by careless manipulation. The cost of maintaining is less than the lubricating oil required for geared transmissions. Total disablement of the friction transmission is impossible. With all these advantages to its credit the future would seem to be bright for the manufacturer of the friction driven car.

The owner of the pleasure car is interested in the smooth running qualities, the freedom from unexpected disablement and the power and capacity to meet all demands upon the road for speed hill climbing and hard service generally. The user of the commercial car is interested because of the freedom from danger of disablement by carelessness of hired drivers and the annoying disturbances of service caused by breakdowns incident to the use of gearing of any type.

The simple car is the car of the future and every moving or wearing part which is not absolutely necessary should be eliminated.

HOW TO TAKE CORNERS

Louis Strang who so successfully drove the Isotta to victory over the disastrous Buick course gives the following advice to aspiring drivers. In turning corners it is not necessary to disengage the clutch or to apply the brake as you approach the corner. Check the speed of the car by throttling—open up when about half way round. Not how or until you have ascertained that the coast is clear. Do not rush hills—take them at a moderate pace but open up just as you strike the grade so as to give the motor the "benefit of the doubt." You will have a feeling at first that you must hang on the steering wheel like grim death. This is unnecessary and the feeling will soon wear away when you will find that a slight touch is sufficient to turn the car in any direction.
 It is a good practice to use the left hand for steering only—the throttle lever; many very easily be manipulated with the index finger for opening and the thumb for closing. This leaves the right hand free to operate the change speed lever. Learn to control the speed of the car with spark and throttle as much as possible releasing the clutch only when absolutely necessary and restoring to the low gear only in extreme cases. It is hard to explain just how to use the spark and throttle but the rule is use the spark for speed and the throttle for power.

 he will immediately begin a two months' practice. Before shipping the Thomas car to compete in this race, Strang tested it out in Buffalo, and secured a speed of from seventy-five to ninety miles an hour, and his personal opinion is, that by perfectly familiarizing himself with the circuit, he will make a most favorable showing.

Broadmoor

WE'VE decided to tell you all about Broadmoor in tomorrow's (Sunday's) papers.
 —Now you're happy, aren't you?

—We thought we would hold off until next Tuesday or Wednesday, but some of our friends got so dazedly anxious that we've agreed to tell the whole story in tomorrow's papers and have that part of it over with.

—One lady came in yesterday and begged so hard to know all about Broadmoor that we had to tell her—She said she and her husband had read every one of our advertisements and when they came to that part about the berries in the morning and the cold shower, it just made their mouths water and that they must know.

—That's the first time we ever heard of a cold shower spoken of in that connection, but undoubtedly it's all right if it's at Broadmoor.

—Another lady (yesterday was evidently ladies' day) wanted to know if Broadmoor was going to be anything like Hollywood Park of Los Angeles, and she certainly hit the nail on the head!

—Yes, Broadmoor will be like Hollywood Park in many particulars, but generously more advantageous in other particulars.

—One thing, for instance, will be the absence of dust, for by the Broadmoor system of road building dust will be a forever absent feature.

—Another advantage will be the wonderfully abundant and economical water supply—it takes lots of water to keep up big lawns such as Broadmoor will have, and water bills at city rates would be almost prohibitive.

—That's why Broadmoor will have its own pneumatic artesian system of water supply.

—Now, don't forget to look for that advertisement tomorrow—We will tell the whole story and also give the date when we will be ready to talk business.

—The advertisement will be in the Call, Chronicle, Examiner and OAK-LAND TRIBUNE—It will be interesting!—You just wait and see if it isn't!

GOSSIP FROM THE SAN FRANCISCO WEEKLIES

DOES NOT BELIEVE IT'S LEGAL.

District Attorney Langdon has bobbed up again. He desires that the Board of Supervisors should grant him a special fund of $120,000 for the prosecution of the higher-ups. He does not propose to tell in advance just how this sum of money is to be expended. Neither does he wish to file statements at once with the Board after indebtedness has been incurred by him. What he really desires is that a large sum shall be given him to spend as he sees fit. He says that he has looked up the law, and believes that the appropriation can be legally made. District Attorney Langdon has not shown himself to be an eminent authority on legal matters. Without looking up the law at all, we have no hesitation in stating off-hand that it would be illegal for the Board of Supervisors to appropriate any special fund of that sort for District Attorney Langdon.—The Wasp.

A POEM BY A POET.

George Sterling has written another poem—a poem worthy of his verve, energetic muse; full of fire and slaughter and verbal ginger. It is called "The Defender," and it sings of the American navy, of clanging steel and reeling turrets and battle-bluffs from merciless horizons east. It is real poetry because it appeals to the imagination of patriots, and it is good poetry because it does not prophesy an impossible peace as the result of an overwhelming and overpowering navy. Poet Sterling mingles good sense with his poetry and put off the millennium to a time "age hence" when "farther skies" shall see this country rise like "Hesperus of the high and starry plain" when nations sit unarmored at the feast of freedom. In this connection I learn from the Examiner that Poet Sterling is the author of another poem entitled "The Testimony of the Guns." I have not read it, nor, in truth, had I ever heard that the poet had written such a testimony. No doubt it is one of his unpublished pieces. If it is as good as "The Defender" or "The Testimony of the Guns" I hope that the poet will not keep it longer under the pen of revision. I am sure that any testimony of the guns reported by Poet Sterling will not be regarded by those who read it as incompetent, irrelevant or immaterial.—Town Talk.

LANGDON HAS SLEUTHS ENOUGH.

Mr. Langdon cannot plead that the $20,000 is necessary to hire a band of special spies, for he has at his command the large and expensive force of regular detectives of the San Francisco police department. Every lawyer in San Francisco scoffs at the presumption that the Supervisors have authority to grant Langdon's ridiculous request. Will the Board of Supervisors go on record as favoring such a waste of public money when the present drain is unparalleled and the taxpayers are wondering what will happen unless the city fathers come to their senses and act like sane business men? Most assuredly, there will be a reckoning next year when elections begin to draw near.—The Wasp.

SUBPOENAS BY WHOLESALE.

A peculiar feature of the Ruef trial, to which the daily press paid little attention, was the wholesale use of subpoenas by Heney and Burns. Burns' men were provided with pocketfuls of subpoenas, honored by Attorney Langdon's rubber stamp, and were instructed to serve them on any one who was supposed to be employed by any of the defendants—particularly by the United Railroads—in the graft cases. Some fifteen of these subpoenas were actually served, under the pretense that their victims were needed by Heney as witnesses in the Ruef trial. It was a transparent trick, the empty pretense being demonstrated by the fact that not one of the fifteen was called to the witness stand. This peculiar use of subpoenas was instigated by Detective Burns' objection to being followed by detectives. The chauffeur and the occupants of an automobile, who, by tracing him, had given the sleuth a dose of his own medicine, were summoned to Judge Dooling's court, and when their places in the pursuing automobiles were taken by others, they, too, succumbed to the subpoena process. This Heney-Burns game worked so successfully—for Judge Dooling refused to interfere with it—that it was amplified, and subpoenas were served on any one that Heney and Burns chose. Each victim was supposed to remain within call of Judge Dooling's court, as long as the trial was in progress. If he did not do so, he rendered himself liable to arrest for contempt of court. He was temporarily deprived of his liberty and his business interfered with, compelled day after day, morning, afternoon and evening, outside Judge Dooling's courtroom. Messrs. Heney and Burns have been leading men in many a travesty of justice during the past eighteen months, and this wholesale use of subpoenas, issued and served under a palpable pretense, is small surprise. There is apparently no limit to the powers which the prosecutors can arrogate to themselves in a campaign of cumulative charges under the sanction of the present District Attorney's office. If such a process can be sustained by law, it would be within the power of the prosecution to close up—temporarily at least—any business that was obnoxious to them. In the next case against the United Railroads, what is to prevent Messrs. Heney and Burns serving subpoenas upon every official and employee of the company, and thus tying up the whole system? While, of course, such is reductio ad absurdum of this subpoenaing process, the success of the Heney trick, absurd and fraudulent as it is, has already been demonstrated. And an attorney is sworn by his oath of office to avoid just such juggling as this!—News Letter.

AMBITIOUS SPRIG ON A FAMILY TREE.

So very quietly and unostentatiously did Mrs. Louise Wright McClure begin her professional career that when she appeared at the Fairmont ball, more beautiful and exquisitely gowned than ever, not one friend who saw her and rejoiced in her loveliness knew she had appeared on the stage in Oakland a few nights before. True, she called herself "Miss Louise Byrd" and Byrd is known to be one of her family names, but both the name and the family are so distinguished that no one identified them on the program. On both sides—or perhaps I should say—on all branches of her family tree so many distinguished ancestors stood that one almost expects them to shin down and upbraid their ambitious descendant. The theater may be all very well in this day and generation, but consider the feelings of those Colonial dames and Declaration of Independence signers had they a vision of their descendant amusing the public. "Louise Byrd" is now away on a professional tour and despite her ancestors one wishes her success.—Town Talk.

THE DEFEAT OF McNAB.

Gavin McNab has lost control of the State Democracy. During the years that McNab has been the boss of the party he has made the fatal mistake of trying to put none but honest men on guard. A really popular and successful Democratic boss should make his headquarters in the back of a saloon, and in selecting his party ticket should always give the preference to the grafters, who would steal the bricks of the City Hall if given the chance to do it. In that way he would be sure to prosper himself, and his army of brigands would also get fat upon the public plunder. McNab has acted very much as if he seriously believed that the California Democracy desires to have all the public offices filled by high-minded people. In theory that principle is most beautiful. In practical politics a grafting boss like Buckley wields the greatest power and holds it longest.—The Wasp.

SHE'S IN THE ASQUITH SET.

A friend in London writes me that Jennie Crocker has been taken up by Mrs. Asquith, the wife of the new Prime Minister. The daily papers have chronicled the fact that Miss Crocker has been presented at court, but that is a distinction easily achieved by anyone with letters to the American Ambassador—and Miss Crocker is a house guest of the Reids. But to interest the wife of the Prime Minister, who counts it a sin to be commonplace, that is indeed a plum to fly in one's bonnet. My correspondent tells me that little Miss Crocker is invited to all Mrs. Asquith's affairs, where foregather not only the socially select, but the brilliant wits of London. Mr. and Mrs. Asquith were among those who tried to persuade Oscar Wilde to leave England while there was yet time, and Mrs. Asquith, who admired his genius, remained a loyal friend in defiance of public opinion. For her loyalty to all who have once won her admiration her friends love her, while they deplore the unconventionalality which makes her do anything when the caprice seizes her. From smoking in a box at a music hall to leaving a Liberal woman's meeting because it bores her, and audibly saying so. The suffragettes have a grievance against her because she openly ridicules them and their cause. The heroine of "Dodo," the book which took all London by storm several years ago, was supposed to be the counterpart of the witty, unconventional Margot Tennant. (Mrs. Asquith's name before her marriage.) There is a dash of tobacco in Miss Crocker's make-up that would naturally appeal to Mrs. Asquith. She, too, loves the unconventional and has a sense of fun that even goes so far as to "make a monkey of herself," which she lately did at a jolly masquerade at the Burlington club. She wore a monkey costume with an appropriate tail and perched on the arm of a chair, was so monkey-like that society thought it must be the real thing. Miss Crocker has a clever way of saying things and Mrs. Asquith is the one woman in London whose bon mots always charmed the late Mr. Gladstone. Politically she has never been a worker, so her husband does not owe his ministerial position to her efforts outside of her home. There she is at her best, and her dinners are meeting places for the most brilliant men and women in London. So the California girl who is privileged to be there may count herself fortunate indeed.—Town Talk.

THE DISCREDITED GRAFT PROSECUTION.

The jury in the Tiley L. Ford case arrived at a verdict of acquittal in five minutes after they left the box. In the Ruef case, where a verdict of conviction in five minutes might not be an unreasonable expectation, the jury remained out all night and were as far as ever from agreement next morning. What does this indicate?

It means that the graft prosecution has become thoroughly discredited. It was so even before Raab Nieto and Rabbi Kaplan made solemn oath that Ruef had been promised complete immunity at a secret midnight meeting, attended by Judges Lawlor and Dunne and the representatives of the District Attorney's office. Public disgust followed public doubt when Judge Dunne and Messrs. Langdon and Heney replied to the two rabbis in counter-advantages, denouncing them as perjurers. The spectacle of confessed bootlickers like the fat and prosperous Gallagher, tramping upon the witness stand to tell how they had been allowed to escape justice, keep plunder, and even hold their important offices for months was a sickening recital. It nauseated newspaper readers, and must have tried the stomachs of the jurors sorely. It is to be wondered at that jurors in the Ruef case should profess to have seen in it all a deliberate conspiracy between confessed felons and pseudo-moral reformers, and therefore hastened to convict the arch criminal of the Schmitz administration?

How different might have been the result had the graft prosecutors avoided their discreditable alliances with unblushing felons like Gallagher for the purpose of railroad embezzlement and useful citizens to San Quentin, and had used the machinery of the courts to convict and imprison blackmailers and thieves who disgraced and almost ruined San Francisco.—The Wasp.

HE WAS A GOOD WOOPER.

Hugo Toland, whose death in the East was reported in the dispatches a few days ago, achieved celebrity by his wooing rather than by his histrionic talents. He could walk through the drama like a gentleman and impersonate himself very well, but he never rose above the commonplace. But he was seldom out of an engagement, for he had many friends in his profession and managers exerted themselves to find parts for him. At one time he was wildly devoted to May Irwin, who only laughed, and at last utterly dashed her mother's hopes by promising "to be a mother to him." Later, he succeeded in marrying Blanche Walsh, so well known to and well beloved of Californians. Still later he married Gertrude Tibball, with whom he appeared in "The First Born" and "The American Girl." She also was a favorite out here, for San Francisco was her birthplace and it was here at the Alcazar that she made her debut. This marriage, which took place in 1901, seemed at last to satisfy the yearnings of Hugo's ardent heart, for we heard no more of him until the news came of his death. Poor old Hugo!—Town Talk.

A COMEDY AND TRAGEDY.

Now that the fleet doings have blown over to a certain extent, some little sidelights come to view that were partially hidden by the rush of events. For instance, one who somewhat embarrassed in its bearing on a few of our city buds, reaches us in something like this form. Of course, all the young naval officers were handsome—and oh, so fascinating! but there was one in the lot who was a very sun among the stars. His name sounded like Lieutenant Jenderson. He was on an Admiral's staff, and he was down at Del Monte. Nobody knows just who discovered his charms first, but it was not long before one bud after the other saw in him all that was manly and desirable—if report may be trusted (and of course one hears so much these days). Even one or two of the seasoned blossoms, whose experience and wisdom should have warned them, looked upon the young Lieutenant with a favorable eye. Luncheons were given for him, he the beau of hops, he was pined with all the beauty, art and science of which the San Francisco maids and matrons have such a bewildering supply. Even the stories, personally delivered, of his prowess were absorbed with unfailing gullibility. Not only that, but the number of admiring, wistful eyes grew and grew. Buds and blossoms both were being mowed down, as it were, before the irresistible onslaughts of Lieutenant Jenderson. He rather enjoyed it, for his part. Of course, it was a bit hard on the man for awhile; sometimes he made the fatal mistake of showering Miss Pompadour of the blonde beauty, with the same protestations of eternal affection that he professed towards Miss Merry Widow of the dark tresses, and girls compare notes, you know.

Then came the reckoning. Even god-like Lieutenants have to turn in their accounts now and then. Some one came from the East. Before the visitor had a chance to inspect the magnificence, he was taken within sight of the idol and bade to look and wonder.

"What, he?" cried the unfeeling wretch, without a moment's hesitation. "Why, he's married! Bless your heart, didn't you know that? Why, that's too bad!" he added when he saw the havoc he had wrought.

Well, it was "something awful." And the worst of it is, Lieutenant Jenderson has that peculiar unscrupulous sense of humor that can regard that sort of thing in an almost playful light. What is more, he smilingly refuses to return the hearts he has captured. "Oh the lass that loved a sailor," etc. —The Wasp.

HUNTINGTON SWATS REFORMERS.

Being a multi-millionaire Mr. H. E. Huntington of Los Angeles can afford to risk getting himself disliked even with a consuming fervor of dislike. So perhaps it is not to be marveled at that on his return to Los Angeles after his recent visit to this city he should have expressed opinions for publication which are in conflict with the sentiments of that great historian, Hubert Howe Bancroft, author of "Builders of the Commonwealth." According to Mr. Huntington the methods of the graft prosecution have greatly retarded the work of rehabilitating San Francisco. "The hope of personal gain," he said, "if my information is correct, is largely, if not wholly responsible for the attacks on Pat Cahoon, and that fact is becoming pretty generally recognized." Mr. Huntington's information may be correct, but there are learned moralists who tell him that even though the prosecution be animated principally by the hope of personal gain, the results to be achieved justify all that has been done, the granting of immunity to all the bootlickers and the indictment of innocent men for the purpose of extorting testimony which might contribute to the desired consummation. Mr. Huntington is not a moralist. He is a business man, and a rich business man at that, and his opinions therefore in matters pertaining to the public weal are of no value. Like all rich business men he is prone to impudence when discussing the activities of civic patriotism. "Who the real instigator is," he said, "is now so well known that it would be useless for me to repeat his name. I consider that the man who uses the pretext of political reform as a cloak for his selfish ambitions is a close second to the man who makes a cloak for hypocrisy. That reform has been used for such a purpose all through these prosecutions is now pretty well understood." It may be pretty well understood by Mr. Huntington, but Mr. Huntington is a rich business man, and what he understands is not of the slightest importance.—Town Talk.

JOHN DREW'S OLD STORY.

John Drew was not permitted to slip away without submitting to a few social attentions aside from Czar Greenway's card to his ball. The stag dinner, which is one of the functions given every season that he graces San Francisco with his presence, by his Burlington friends, took place according to program, and was a very delightful affair. The dinner took place at the Fairmont, and among those present were Thomas H. Williams, Frank Michael, R. M. Tobin, C. R. Tobin, Will Crocker, Walter Hobart and Lansing Kellogg.

One of those present at this Drew love-feast tells me that he waited in vain for the popular matinee idol to tell the famous old story of his.

"Perhaps he told it before I arrived, though, or after I left."

"And the story?"

"Well, as Drew used to tell it, a Frenchman called upon him with the polite accompaniment to his entrance—

"I hope I don't cockroach upon your valuable time."

"Drew gently corrected:—No, you do not cockroach."

"Ho! hen-croach. I mistook the Rex," said the Frenchman.—The Wasp.

WHAT WILL MRS. GLYN SAY.

Mrs. Glyn, now being feted by local society, is the English lady who wrote a book of the "seller" variety entitled "Three Weeks," which thrust fame upon the author because the prudes, reading between the lines and their blushes, found what the inaccurate reviewer calls "the crux of the story." These prudes immediately condemned the book as "indecent" and everybody else read the book to inform himself concerning the exact indecency discovered by the pioneering prudes. Everybody else was disappointed. Then the prudes invited Mrs. Glyn to say the things with her lips that she had written in her book and when Mrs. Glyn came to the talking point the courage of the prudes faded at the ends of fingers that had covered the blushes engendered by reading the saucy book of Mrs. Glyn, and the English lady was refused a hearing, whereupon the indignant authoress said things about the prudes that were heard round the world and made the prudes feel worse than they did after reading "Three Weeks" from the frontispiece to colophon. Wherefore Californian curiosity is agog to see what sort of an orgeous this famous (or notorious) Mrs. Glyn may happen to be. My own curiosity is not in that direction. I don't care a button on a beggar's gaberdine what sort of a woman Mrs. Glyn is or what she looks like—but I am as impatient as a debutante at her first scandal tea to hear what she will say in compliment or censure of our women as they shall come within the range of her somewhat jaundiced vision wherein all things feminine are more or less yellow.—Town Talk.

WITHOUT A NAME.

Poor Cornelia Baxter Tevis McKee told a reporter, after the laundering of the McKees' soiled linen was finished in the Paris courts, that she didn't know what to do. She was "without a name." Isn't that pitiful! Doesn't it sound like Bertha Clay or May Agnes Fleming?

Why, a story with that pathetic title, the chapters dealing with a heart-breaking heroine bearing the many names of Cornelia Baxter, Tevis McKee would run into a "best seller" at once with the kitchenmaids, who love to pore over that sort of literature. "Without a Name!"—wouldn't that catch your eye, now?

Poor Cornelia says that if she uses the name of McKee she will be fined by the French authorities. She does not like to go back to Baxter, because there are little Hugh Tevis and little Andre McKee to be considered—boys who might ask funny questions.

It has been rumored—dispatch rumor—that the Marquis Guglielmi is speeding to Paris from Chile to join the lady with whom he once had a little flirtation—and that Cornelia-Without-a-Name may soon call herself Guglielmi.

Now, are the dispatchers merely guessing, or do they know?

Didn't we read a short time ago that the Marquis had a wife somewhere, and that he couldn't marry if he wished to?

Gerald Hughes, the first fiancé of Cornelia Baxter Tevis McKee, might have been the man to provide Cornelia with that needful name, but he lately took to himself a wife. For several years Hughes noted the part of a love-letter, pessimistic, misogynistic Romeo-Hamlet. The other day he changed in a hurry, came out of his blue study and wedded Mrs. Nagle, a Chicago woman who has had almost as breezy experiences in matrimony as enjoyed by Cornelia the Nameless One.

Mrs. Hughes, as Mrs. Nagle, is quite well remembered here, where she came with the Taft party that visited the Philippines and which, had Princess Alice as one of its star attractions.—The Wasp.

THREE MEN AND A BOAT.

Over on the top of Telegraph Hill a dory sloop is building, the most wonderful surely of its kind, made up of romantic dreams and poetic fancies held together by a few hard nails of political fact, tempered by the aptitude of temperament. Herman Whitaker, novelist, Harry Laffer, poet, and Perry Newberry, artist, politician and all round writer, have banded together to build a boat wherein to sail the seas of fancy. (That it should sail the seas of fact seems beyond the range of human possibilities—but you never can tell.) Morning and evening and all day Sunday they hammer, saw and pound very much as though they were horny handed sons of toil and had never heard of the Peaks of Parnassus. Moreover the denizens of Telegraph Hill have recently taken to nailing down their lumber piles of nights, so other material than the stuff dreams are made of must be going into the boat. Perhaps it will sail after all, and if it does—well there will be doings in Bohemia!—Town Talk.

WILL BE WARD McALLISTER'S SUCCESSOR.

Mr. Martin, who found fame in one night with his "1100", will probably now be the leader of Gotham's Smart Set. One society editor deferred to him as one sitting in authority, with a capital A, and his declaration that the Four Hundred has become Eleven Hundred is received as a pronouncement ex cathedra.

Mr. Martin's admirers say that he deserves this recognition. He has shown the qualities that command, and his leadership should be a brilliant as well as a lasting one. He is strongly opposed to the "freak" entertainments that brought ridicule on the whole Newport set two or three years ago. A reform in this particular would be an achievement worth while and will get for Mr. Martin the gratitude of all the better portion of society. Grotesquerie has no place in the conduct of well-bred people. Mr. Martin's recognition of this truth is a hopeful sign for the dignity of things in general.—The Wasp.

NOT AN ADAMLESS EDEN.

Mrs. Linda Bryan acted as chaperon for about eleven attractive girls at Del Monte, and the table where they sat looked like a branch of a young ladies' seminary, with the exception, however, that male admirers were not banished. On the contrary, the array of beaux was quite noticeable, and apparently not to the displeasure of the congregation of young beauties or the agreeable chaperon.—The Wasp.

A SOLITARY STUDENT.

As a result of President Wheeler's policy of raising the standard at the State University the junior class in medicine has gradually dwindled away until there is now but a solitary student left. And this young man of abnormal mental strength will receive the undivided attention next term of the whole faculty. This unique state of affairs was brought about by the addition of a three-year pre-medical course in medicine so difficult as to be beyond the capacity of young men not of the very highest grade of intelligence. It appears to be President Wheeler's policy to train young men rather for original research work than for the solution of the problems encountered in the ordinary course of medical practice.—Town Talk.

WOULDN'T IT BE DREADFUL?

But when a fearful stampede of climbers there would be if a Mr. Frederick Townsend Martin should arise in San Francisco and say there were 1100 people constituting society here. Why, there must be 5000 names in the blue book alone. Since the earthquake the difficulty of picking the who's who are still mingling in the giddy whirl, from the who's whose whom financial reverses have sent to hide in the tall timber, and the who's whose who were never there, but have always desired to be, has driven the society editors of most of the San Francisco dailies into sanitariums.—The Wasp.

TAFT THE MAN.

From present indications it appears almost certain that Secretary Taft will be nominated for President at the Republican convention, which will meet next month at Chicago. It is evident that the present program is to nominate Secretary Taft upon the first ballot and thus prevent the stampede to President Roosevelt which has been plotted by the army of Federal officeholders. Even now it is very doubtful if these place-hunters have made up their minds that Secretary Taft is to be the next President of the United States. That there has been a conspiracy and a very powerful one, to nominate President Roosevelt for a third term is beyond question. It is true that the President declared that he would not again be a candidate, and within a few months reiterated that declaration. It is also true, however, that while President Roosevelt has been placed upon record as having eliminated himself from the list of available candidates, his most intimate friends have been whispering that he would be the next President. Commenting upon this peculiar contradiction of statements, the New York Sun of recent date said "that it is unapparently too true that Mr. Roosevelt's word carries little weight with the general public (meaning to doubt the New York public). Hence the fact that his disavowals of an intention to serve another term creates uneasiness instead of reassurance."—The Wasp.

BANQUET TO MELVIN AND REED.

Wednesday night the Key Route Inn was the scene of a rather notable affair when the Republicans of Alameda banqueted in honor of Judge Henry A. Melvin and George W. Reed, delegates at large to the National Republican convention. The invitations were sent out by N. C. Threlkeld, vice-chairman of the Republican county central committee, and Henry S. Anderson, secretary, soon after the results of the election were known, and there was a large and enthusiastic acceptance in the interest of politics and a good time. Every one was in the best of spirits, the fare was excellent, and the speeches better and taken altogether the evening was a thoroughly enjoyable success.—Town Talk.

CHANGED HER MIND THIS SEASON.

The friends of Miss Jenny Crocker are looking forward to letters from her describing her sensations when she was presented at court. Mrs. Reid presented her little cousin on May 15. When Miss Crocker first went abroad she did not care to be presented to royalty, but it is possible Miss Joan Reid's engagement to King Edward's favorite, the Hon. John Hubert Ward, may have been a factor to induce the California heiress to change her mind.—The Wasp.

YOUTH NO BAR.

As no further proof has appeared in the papers of the coming marriage of Mrs. Yerkes-Mizner with Leo Tockltonius of Racine, Wis., the question of whether such marriage is to take place is still open to discussion. Mrs. Yerkes-Mizner's new admirer is a pianist, twenty-four years of age. His people say that there is no truth in the rumor that Leo is to wed Mrs. Yerkes-Mizner.

Wilson Mizner, who wedded the widow of Charles Yerkes, the millionaire, only to lose her after a very brief space of wedded bliss, was four years older than the pianist who is said to be about to succeed him. The next time we hear a report of Mrs. Yerkes-Mizner's intention to wed again, the reputed bridegroom-elect will probably be a lad of sixteen.—The Wasp.

NEW YORK AND ITS "400"

It is to be hoped that society circles in New York are not becoming unduly elastic and that there is no relaxation of the severity with which credentials are examined. There was a time when the "Four Hundred" expressed something definitely numerical, and although things began to be a little vague some three years ago, when Mrs. Astor made it known that there were six hundred names on her visiting list, we continued to speak of the "Four Hundred" under the impression that the additional two hundred must be some kind of retainers, poor relations, or camp followers, a sort of outlying fringe who were not exactly in the promised land, although they were allowed to view its wonders from the giddy summit of Mrs. Astor's visiting list.

But now comes Mr. Frederick Townsend Martin with his assurance that our social aristocracy has increased and multiplied in the most disconcerting fashion. He says that its present strength is 1100, and this means an increase of 200 per cent in five years. This surely implies a deplorable lowering of standards somewhere and an invasion by a class of persons who a few years ago had no right to consider themselves as in existence at all. Professional people must surely have been admitted to the charmed circle, while the rigor of financial qualifications must have been relaxed. All these things are a sign of the times and of a breaking away from hoary tradition.

One of the immediate results, so Mr. Martin tells us, is the abolition of the single leadership. It was bad enough to be responsible for four hundred, but a very Napoleon of society would be needed for eleven hundred. Mrs. Fish is of the same opinion, for she says, "There is no leader of society now. It's too large to manage." And not only too large, but too inebriated. The infusion of new blood means a breaking away from old traditions and a growing unwillingness to keep to the straight and narrow path. But Mr. Martin is filled with exultation. He feels something like the missionary who married a native woman and then reported to his home society that the church had doubled itself. "The attention of the world," says Mr. Martin, "being focussed upon the developments of New York society," so great a growth will naturally redound to the credit of the republic. The toiling millions will rejoice to find that an ever greater number of favored ones are flitting upward into these charmed circles where they toil not neither do they spin and where the costumes certainly surpass those of Solomon in all his glory.—Argonaut.

REAL ESTATE PROFITS

We maintain that the FOURTH AVENUE TERRACE EXTENSION which we shall offer for sale for the first time on Saturday, May 30th, at 2 p. m., is the finest residence place that will ever be placed on the market in the bay cities.

We believe that it is actually the greatest opportunity that will be offered this year or any year to the homeseeker and investor.

We know that no more superb view, no better climate, no more beautifully situated and beautifully surrounded tract than this, exists.

We are proud to offer it for sale, and especially so at the low prices we are able to put on it and the terms of ten per cent down and one per cent a month which enables any man or woman to obtain one of these lots.

No customer of ours has ever lost a dollar through an investment with us and we believe that none ever will.

An investment in Fourth Avenue Terrace Extension is absolutely safe and at the same time enormously profitable ---scores of our customers have doubled their money in the past and so can you in the future.

In fact, the present is an especially favorable and opportune moment to invest. Not only are commercial conditions rapidly improving and all values on the upward trend, but TWO NEW ELECTRIC LINES right into this tract will assure large profits to every purchaser.

The Fourth Avenue car line is in course of being extended—a big gang of men are at work every day—and in a few weeks cars will be running right through FOURTH AVENUE TERRACE EXTENSION.

The Piedmont Extension of the Key Route has acquired its right of way over its whole extent and this right of way touches Fourth Avenue Terrace Extension and is shown on our maps.

You know as well as we do what it means to a section of a city when TWO NEW ELECTRIC LINES are built into a previously undeveloped section. It means profit for every holder of title to real property.

Already this section is feeling the stir and impulse of rising values, scores of houses are being built, and profits are being taken.

FOURTH AVENUE TERRACE EXTENSION is the very cream of the whole section and we are prepared for a regular rush for lots when it goes on sale Saturday next at 2:30 p. m.

Remember that this tract is of the very highest class; that it has a matchless view of the city and bay; that its climate is ten degrees warmer than nearer the bay; that it is close to good schools; that it is beautifully laid out with curving parkways and boulevards; that it is close to several car lines, besides Fourth Avenue; that it is only ten minutes from the center of Oakland and a few minutes walk from Lake Merritt and adjoins Sather Park of three hundred acres, the most beautiful spot in Oakland.

We warn our customers not to be late in getting in on this proposition. It will pay you and pay you big to just drop business for a few hours and see this property and make your selections. Our machines will be running out every few minutes today and every day including Saturday, the day of the great sale.

But we advise you not to wait until then. We will be able to give you more of our time if you come over early and see the tract ahead of the crowd that will tax our resources on Saturday next.

Come Early. Come Today. By No Means Let This Opportunity Escape You.

Women Spend Closing Hours of Convention on Pleasure Trip

DELIGHTFUL EXCURSION TO THE CITY OF ROSES

Women Clubs' Delegates Visit Santa Rosa

A trip to Santa Rosa, by the courtesy of Mrs. W. S. Palmer, was the final affair of the convention of the California Federation of Women's Clubs.

The women of Santa Rosa entertained the visitors at luncheon and short trips were made through the city. On the return a reception was given by the clubs of Santa Rosa.

LUNCHEON AT HOME CLUB
Those who did not go on the excursion were the guests of the Home Club at a luncheon.

Last night the music was furnished by the Elks Club of Berkeley, under the direction of Mrs. William Wadsworth. Mrs. William Douglas Turner gave dramatic readings.

Concluding Session.
At yesterday afternoon's session of the California Federation of Women's Clubs at Elks Hall, Mrs. E. F. Watson, president of the northern district, in her official report gave a succinct account of the progress made in her part of the state. The conditions were found to be satisfactory.

Gavel Cut Her Out.
Mrs. E. C. Hart of San Francisco, president of the San Francisco district, made an encouraging report of the condition of affairs in her district. She paid a special compliment to the club of Santa Rosa, which she hailed as an infant prodigy.

Richmond Women Praised.
Mrs. H. L. Eastman, president of the Alameda district, extended praise to the Women's Civic Improvement Club of Richmond. Their success has been phenomenal. All other branches were said to be advancing satisfactorily.

Wide Scope of Work.
The report on "Clubs," written by Mrs. M. S. Robertson, was read by Mrs. Davies. A wide scope of good work was reported to have been attempted and accomplished. An earnest attack on the bill-board nuisance was voiced in this paper. It was predicted that obnoxious advertisements and signs will soon disappear from California and it is hoped from all the other states of the Union.

Strength and Unity.
Miss Hendretta Stadtmuller of San Francisco devoted a thoughtful effort to illustrating the value of co-operation and spoke warmly of "Strength" realized through the federation of the women's clubs.

Mrs. O. Shepard Barnum of Los Angeles taking "Unity" for her topic said that she and Miss Stadtmuller were supposed to be twins so far as the afternoon's program was concerned. The two in joining their thoughts gave an illustration of the motto on the federation pin, worn by so many, namely "Strength United is stronger." In this connection Mrs. Barnum dwelt on the importance of federation of all women's clubs. Mrs. Barnum explained the meaning of the different elements of the pin. The torch signifies enlightenment, the circle indicates eternity, unity, continuity. The wings represent aspiration. She pleaded for organized conscience, which she said is simply federation.

Resolutions Adopted.
The committee on resolutions, through Mrs. Robert Potter Hill, reported a resolution in honor of the late Miss Kate Lemberger, favoring kindergartens in the public schools, endorsing the University Clubhouse fund, commending the work of Washington Township Club in regard to limiting the number of saloons, asking the Legislature to amend the law so as to give longer sentences to women who are drunkards, declaring that gambling shall no longer be tolerated by law, favoring the publication of statistics concerning the condition, asking that eight hours be fixed as the maximum for children and ten hours for women; inviting attention to the condition of Indians in California; declaring that the age of majority for girls as well as boys shall be 21 years; giving thanks to the hostesses of the present convention, to Mayor Mott, to Elks Club, to Mrs. Edwin D. Buss, the retiring president, and to the press for the current and appreciative reports of the work of the convention.

On motion of Mrs. Hatch of Modesto the report of the committee on resolutions was adopted.

Delegates Appointed.
The following were appointed by the chair as delegates to the National Federation Congress to be held in Albuquerque—Mrs. A. E. Osborn, Mrs. John Fairweather, Mrs. Willoughby Rodman.

A letter from Mrs. Sarah Platt Dicker, president of the Grand Federation of Women's Clubs, suggesting topics for club work was read. Mrs. Dicker said that "the profession of club woman" should be and she predicts it will be recognized as a title of honor. She urged all members to persevere in the good work in which they are engaged.

Treasurer's Report.
The treasurer's report presented by Mrs. Charles L. Donohoe was read, showing the receipts to be $2607.40 and the expenditures $1795.53. This was referred to the league's auditors.

Mrs. Henry S. Bridge, one of the league's auditors, reported the treasurer's report to be correct, whereupon both reports were received and adopted.

Mrs. H. A. Hebard of Alameda, Mrs. Cutler of San Joaquin, Mrs. Bradley of San Francisco, Mrs. P. Waters of Los Angeles, Mrs. L. Darlington, southern, Mrs. E. T. Walton, northern, were elected as delegates, and Mrs. J. E. Ely, Mrs. Richmond, Mrs. Hamilton, Mrs. O. S. Barnum, Mrs. Robert J. Burdette and Miss Hare were elected as delegates at large from California to the biennial conference of National Federation of Women's Clubs to be held in Boston.

Del Monte was decided upon as the place for the next annual convention to be held in May, 1908.

T. O. CRAWFORD MADE PRINCIPAL
Preferred List of Teachers to Fill Vacancies Made at Meeting of Board.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the City Board of Education last night, T. O. Crawford, formerly County Superintendent of Schools, was appointed to a principalship in the Oakland schools, but was unassigned. The following preferred list of teachers, to fill vacancies as they may occur, was prepared for the school term of 1908-09:

Miss Zannette W. Potter, Miss Clara E. Mayson, Miss Anna Morris, Miss Annie Alderson, Miss Agnes D. Taylor, Miss Margaret, Miss Annie Perdue, Miss Mary Carroll, Miss Viola Anderson, Miss Julia G. Flaherty, Miss Marie Held, Miss Mary P. Carroll, Miss Nell Findley, Mrs. Louise Tennant, Miss Eva Biedenweg, Miss Caroline Koford, Miss F. M. Goss, Miss Attal Hoag, Miss Beulah Lanyon, Miss L. J. Park, Miss Julia Breese, Miss Anna F. Glover, Miss Mary Ellen Hubbard, Miss L. M. Harley, Mrs. Ella O. Davis, Miss Estelle V. Hall, Miss Madge Cunningham, Miss Myrtle M. Riddle, Miss Loma E. Jordan, Miss Alice O'Connell, Miss Isabel Grace Dunn, Miss Ethel Loblindner.

LOCAL BREVITIES

Tool Box Robbed.—The Piedmont Paving Company reports the theft of carpenter's tools valued at $60 from a tool box at Lake Shore and Cottage avenues.

Lost His Money.—Caroline Lehnus of 1517 Telegraph avenue, reported to the police this morning the loss of a purse containing $45 in gold while on the way from Twenty-third avenue to Twenty-first street and Telegraph avenue.

Reports Watch Stolen.—C. E. Williamson of 1637 Harmon street, reported the theft of a watch valued at $10 from his vest which he had left hanging in a house under course of construction at 687 Sixty-first street.

POSED AS COLLECTOR OF COMPANY IS CLAIM

Richard Englander, alias Lewis, an old offender, is under arrest at the city prison on a charge of having illegally collected throughout the Chinese section a sum of money due the Oakland Gas, Light and Heat Company for water and gas. Englander posed as a collector for the company and has been up to his practice for some days. Last night he was arrested by Policeman A. B. Smith and taken to jail where he will be changed, after an investigation of his past record, with obtaining money under false pretenses. The exact amount of collections is not known.

Harden to Get Another Trial

LEIPSI, May 23.—The Supreme Court today set aside the verdict of the lower court under which Maximilian Harden, the Berlin editor, was found guilty of libeling Von Moltke, and ordered that the case be re-tried by the lower court. Harden was cheered by the crowd as he went to the court room.

JACKIE WOOS AND WINS MAIDEN ON TORPEDO BOAT

Olga Isile, Slowaway's Romantic Cruise

Olga Isile is a lass who loves a sailor, and on Monday next she is to become the sailor's bride on the other side of the bay. The Jackie who is to claim the fair Olga as his bride bears the somewhat unusual name of John Czesawski, one of the lads who man the torpedo boat destroyer Hopkins, and who, the bride prospective declares is to be allowed seventy-four hours' leave of absence in order to enable him to comply with the formality of the law in the matter of claiming her as his wife.

Unknown and Known.
A few days ago fair Olga was unknown. Today she is known all over the Pacific Coast, and, indeed, it may be said, all over the country, or at least where people are in the habit of reading the newspapers, for the reason that she has distinguished herself by having been smuggled aboard the destroyer referred to at Los Angeles and riding in that cramped little craft to Santa Cruz, where, under inspection, notwithstanding that there was a person aboard who was not entitled by reason of her sex to be there either as a visitor or as an enlisted defender of the flag.

Met a Bunch of Jackies.
Olga says by way of explaining her escapade, that she met a "bunch of Jackies" in the Chutes in Los Angeles. They took a fancy to her and she took a fancy to them. One Jackie in blue asked her if she would like to go aboard with the "bunch" and the young woman replied that nothing would delight her more.

A few hours later, encased in a suit of sailor clothes, Olga, regardless of the waterfulness of the officer on deck, made the trip up the coast to Santa Cruz.

Expelled the Ship.
There, she was given to understand, that her romance so far as the Hopkins was concerned, was at an end. She was sent ashore and the Jackie who had been instrumental in getting her into the destroyer, tied the ship, fearing the punishment of court martial which was sure to be visited upon him.

Loved Unpronounceable Name.
Strange to relate, it was not the Jackie who took the fair lady aboard with whom the damsel fell in love, but the boy who bears the unpronounceable name given above. She met the latter for but a moment, at the Chutes in Los Angeles, and in that moment, she fell in love with him.

HOTEL TOURAINE.

New Schedule Is Fixed

On and after Sunday, May 24th, 1908, the boats and trains of the Key Route will be operated on a twenty-minute service from Oakland, Piedmont and Berkeley up to and including 11:20 P. M., after which the last train for San Francisco will leave terminals at 12 o'clock midnight. From San Francisco the twenty-minute service will be effective up to and including 11:20 P. M., then at 12 P. M. and 1 P. M.

she made up her mind that he and she had been for all time intended for one another.

Courted at Sea.
But the courtship took place while the sailor Hopkins was ploughing the seas up the coast from Los Angeles. Of course, there are times even aboard torpedo boat destroyers when Jackies are not on watch and it was during those precious moments that the words of love were spoken.

Tears in Salts' Eyes.
There were tears in the eyes of the prospective bridegroom as there were also in the eyes of the bride-elect when Olga had to abandon the ship and there was a disposition to moisture, also in the optics of the other Jackies at the same time, for the reason that the stowaway had been in no manner restricted or conventional in her treatment of the crew, and it has been stated that some of the officers of the craft were aware that there was a person aboard who was not entitled by reason of her sex to be there either as a visitor or as an enlisted defender of the flag.

Officers Cognizant.
Indeed, this statement has been made by the adventurous maiden herself, and as a consequence, there has been set in motion the machinery of court martial for the purpose of determining who has desecrated the sanctity of a cruel torpedo boat, destroyer by clandestinely bringing aboard a young woman who had only a reckless desire for adventure.

With Jackies Ashore.
Olga might have sunk again into the oblivion from which she had not emerged only a few days before, had it not been that the Jackies did not desire to lose such a good fellow, and so keep her in mind as well as in appearance, they provided her with money with which to pay her fare to San Francisco.

There she was on hand, and with her suiters, to enjoy what was to be enjoyed in the metropolis.

Caught Again.
Olga, however, had not dispelled the idea that she could go to sea again, and in furtherance of this idea, while attempting to board the destroyer at Valjeo yesterday in sailor's garb, she was arrested, but was later sent about her business. She went to San Francisco and is now stopping at the home of her aunt, Mrs. M. Daniele, 616 Russian avenue.

Miss Isile declares there were three officers aboard the ship who knew she was aboard because they could see her all the time with the boys and they never said anything to her about the impropriety of her being there.

Pedigree.
Olga is the daughter of Frank Isile, whose real name, she says, is Portusach. The latter, she declares, had some valuable plantations in the Philippines, where he now is. Her mother is dead, but she has an aunt, two brothers and a sister in Los Angeles, with whom she lived. Her father, she says, was a high official of Guam at the time of the outbreak of the Spanish-American War, but lost his wealth during the disturbances that followed.

POPE WILL MAKE TWO DIOCESES OUT OF CLEVELAND AND PROMOTE MGR. FARRELLY

ROME, May 23.—It is believed in the Vatican circles that the Cleveland diocese, rendered vacant by the recent death of Bishop Hartmann, will be divided in two and that Toledo will be the head of the new diocese. Monsignor John Farrelly, spiritual director of the American College and Rev. J. M. Koudiska, one of the consultants of the Cleveland diocese, probably will be made bishops, the former of Cleveland and the latter at Toledo.

40,000 FALL VICTIMS OF FAMINE

Awful Mortality Due to Complete Failure of Crops in Uganda, Africa—Government Feeding 50,000 Natives.

MOMBASA, British East Africa, May 23.—Over 40,000 deaths have resulted from the severe famine prevailing in the Uganda province of Uganda. The government is feeding 50,000 of the natives. Crops are a complete failure.

JAIL SENTENCE BLOCKED BY WRIT

Physician Found Guilty of Contempt to Have Further Hearing in Court.

(SPECIAL TO THE TRIBUNE.)
SAN FRANCISCO, May 23.—Dr. Edward Creely did not go out to the county jail in accordance with the program mapped out for him by Judge Dooley yesterday, when he was sentenced to five days in the county jail for contempt of court for saying to the jury, jurors, "Do not convict my friend Rufel."

Early this morning Attorney James H. Creely of Oakland, a brother of the doctor, appeared in the District Court of Appeals, and applied for a writ of habeas corpus, based on the allegations that the advent of Isaac Penny, which was the basis for Judge Dooley's sentence, did not constitute sufficient evidence, and failed to state that the defendant was guilty of any offense.

The court granted the writ, making it returnable on June 11, and admitted Dr. Creely to bail in the sum of $100.

N. Y. FRIENDS SECURE BARNETT'S RELEASE

SAN FRANCISCO, May 23.—According to the testimony given by Frank L. Gilbert, Pacific Coast manager for the National Surety Company, which furnished the $200,000 bond upon which Barnett was released, it was secured by private parties in New York city at the solicitation of Attorney Oscar Cooper, Barnett's counsel.

These are the individuals who furnished the guarantee: W. C. Payson, Edwin Hawley, president of the Iowa Central Railroad; B. Y. Yodum of the Rock Island Railroad; E. F. Hutton & Co., brokers; E. P. Earle, a mining man; Colonel Frank H. Ray, director of the American Tobacco Company, and H. P. Wilson of the Great Western Power Company.

J. Dalzell Brown was with the Grand Jury explaining in detail the manner in which disposition was made of the Colton securities. Further evidence was brought to light tending to prove that the books of the California Safe Deposit and Trust Company had been falsified after the fire as well as before.

Sugar Steamer Has Gone Ashore

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 23.—The German steamer Hornesse from Cuba with a cargo of sugar is ashore on Brigantine Shoals.

The Hornesse is hard and fast on the bar. She is lying in an easy position but the life savers think part of her cargo of sugar will have to be lightened before she can be floated.

IS MOVED TO STEAL, IS CLAIM

Woman Claims She's Victim of Uncontrollable Desire to Appropriate Property of Others; Detained at Prison.

Mrs. May Carney, said by the police to be a victim of kleptomania, is under arrest at the city prison on a charge of the theft of a gilt jewel box, a gold ring and $9 in coin from Mrs. F. G. Chaffee of 1202 East Sixteenth street. The property has been recovered. Mrs. Carney having made Mrs. Hsie Marshall of 1172 East Sixteenth street, a present of the stolen property.

Mrs. Carney, who, at the time of her arrest, was in the employ of Mrs. Chaffee, was formerly a domestic in the Marshall household. Mrs. Marshall missed a number of small articles during the employment of Mrs. Carney, but did not suspect her servant. When Mrs. Carney went to the home of Mrs. Chaffee she was the friendly terms with her former employer. Mrs. Chaffee soon began to miss articles and when she learned that Mrs. Marshall was in possession of goods stolen from her home, the two victims of the alleged kleptomania held a consultation with the result that suspicion attached to the domestic. Her arrest followed.

Mrs. Carney insists that she does not steal for gain, but that any crimes she commits are the result of an uncontrollable desire to appropriate the property of others, although she is not in need. Although kleptomania, under the law, does not constitute legal responsibility, it is said that the charge of theft against the arrested woman will not be pressed by the two women she is accused of having robbed.

Suspected of Theft.—Two boys who were seen in the pigeon house in the rear of the property of S. L. Levy at 805 Eleventh street, are suspected of having attempted to rob the house, an attempt having been made to force open a rear door. A number of pigeons are reported stolen.

THE MEDDLER

MISS IRENE BIGLEY

With the closing of the universities and of schools generally, the holidays are here, bringing plans for everyone. People are planning to go far and near in many cases, and news notes from abroad are usually of the greatest interest. There was a time when California was an isolated State, and a trip across the continent not lightly to be undertaken. Now one's friends are continually crossing the continent, and a trip to Europe for Easterners is in the nature of an annual vacation. Many of our dearest friends spend a good deal of time in the East and Europe, and so it happens that social notes are rarely complete unless they carry messages from the East and abroad.

Among the interesting people who have been recently in New York are the Marquis and Marchioness of Headfort, the latter one of the really brilliant women who represent very fitly England's "smart set."

It is always interesting when a bright, clever woman analyzes American social conditions, letting us see ourselves as others see us. An analysis in a fair way is very far removed from unkind criticism, and so a recent interview by this brilliant Englishwoman of rank is of more than the ordinary degree of interest. In the first place the Marchioness really liked America, and accepted in a friendly spirit many social conditions different from those in her own country. In a much-quoted interview she says:

"When I say I have greatly enjoyed my visit among the Americans, I am speaking the truth. I like American women better than American men. I was astonished to go to a luncheon where there were only women. In England we always have men to talk to three times a day, and at first I did not fancy the innovation because it is so much easier to talk to men. But I found it was rather chery being with women, and of course, the women here are so refreshing and different. The type has an individuality that explains the success of American women in foreign society. But I did not see many men."

"I think both the English and American men might revise their modes of life. The Englishman doesn't work enough and becomes one-sided; the American works too much. He does not take enough time to enjoy himself, and that too, is a mistake. Why can't they strike a happy medium. Six hours a day is quite long enough for a man to work. Then he has a chance to develop the mental and social sides."

"I dare say this unceasing toil has brought about the prodigious success of this nation. Very well then, it is quite true now, that America is as very rich, for the workers to relax a bit. I hear there is a tendency in this direction, but to an Englishwoman it seems that the American is all work."

HEARST ARE GOING ABROAD.

Among those planning to go abroad this summer are Mr. and Mrs. William R. Hearst, who will sail for Europe the latter part of May. They will be away two months, and on their return to America, will come to the hacienda to visit Mrs. Hearst. Master George Hearst is to spend the summer at Pleasanton with his grandmother. She is most devoted to her dear little grandson, who is a charming child, very attractive and exceedingly bright—a fine type of the sturdy young American, from whom much may be expected in the future.

ANENT MISS JANE REID.

Many members of the smart set, both in Oakland and San Francisco, met Miss Jean Reid, when she was here last winter to visit her grandfather, D. O. Mills. Everyone was charmed with her, for she is really a splendid girl, very genuine and most unaffected. As the daughter of the Ambassador to Great Britain, many honors have come her way, and she has been much sought after in exclusive social circles abroad. But she has remained quite unspooled by all the attention offered her, and she has remained a most unaffected girl, a very charming young American girl. So there is much interest in social circles on this Coast, where D. O. Mills and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid have so many friends in regard to the engagement and coming marriage of this only daughter of the family. The wedding of Miss Reid to John Hubert Hall, brother of the Earl of Dudley, will take place in the Chapel Royal of St. James' Palace, June 23d.

King Edward and Queen Alexandra will be present and as the chapel is small, it will be necessary to limit the invitations to the ceremony, but there will be a large reception at Dorchester House, the London residence of the bride's father.

Mrs. Reid gave a reception last week, at which many Americans were present, among them pretty Miss Jennie Crocker of California. Mrs. Reid presented Miss Crocker at court, and the California heiress aroused a great deal of interest. Many of the gowns at court were exceedingly picturesque, being a modified style of the Directoire which recently created such a sensation in Paris. Queen Alexandra wore a pale mauve crepe de chine embroidered in gold. Mrs. Reid's gown of blue was embroidered with diamonds, and she wore a magnificent tiara and other jewels.

MRS. OELRICHS IS IN PARIS.

Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs is in Paris, and is leaving in the very near future for London. Mrs. Oelrichs is to spend the summer at Newport, where she will have as her guest her sister, Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt Junior. Later in the season Mrs. Oelrichs is coming to San Francisco to look after her business interests here.

AMONG THOSE GOING ABROAD.

Among those planning to spend the summer abroad are Mrs. William G. Henshaw, Mrs. Lucie May Hayes, Mrs. John Heath and her children, and Miss Constance Meeks. Mrs. Henshaw spent some years abroad, so she goes to the Continent now with very well defined ideas of what she wishes to see. She is a good student, so she will appreciate what the Old World has to offer along culture lines.

Mrs. Lucie May Hayes has been abroad so much that she has almost as many friends in Paris as she has here—in fact she knows Paris as very few Americans know it. She is very bright and clever, a very cultured woman, and one can imagine the very enjoyable time these two friends will have this summer abroad.

HEATHS HAVE GONE TO EUROPE.

Mrs. John Heath, with Miss Constance and Master Jack Heath, left for the East and Europe on Wednesday evening. Miss Constance Heath, who is an exceedingly attractive girl, graduated from Miss Head's School this year, and her mother is planning for her an extensive trip abroad.

Master Jack Heath is to spend the coming year in school in Geneva, after which he will enter Harvard. He is a very fine type of the American boy—one sure to make his mark in the future.

The family home of the Heaths here is closed indefinitely, much to the regret of their many friends, especially of the young friends of the children of the family. Mrs. Heath has always made her children's friends most welcome and the home has been the scene of much hospitality, which the young friends of the family here will greatly miss.

Mrs. Heath may return to California next summer for a brief business trip, but it is not likely that during Jack Heath's college days that the family home will be in Oakland. One hopes they will remain, away down in their hearts, Californian, though they are the kind of people who are true to old friendships, and some of us may be quite sure of our own places in their hearts.

Mrs. Heath and her children are going first to Richmond to visit relatives and later they will sail on the White Star liner Oceanic, going to Cherbourg.

Miss Constance Meeks, who recently sold the old family home at Claremont, will accompany her sister, Mrs. Heath, and will spend some months in travel abroad. Mrs. Williams and Miss Mary Williams are in Mrs. Heath's party also and they have gone East, planning to spend the summer with relatives in Rhode Island.

Miss von Kinscljanka, who has been for the past three years in Oakland, and who is one of the leading contralto singers on the Coast, returns to Germany with Mrs. Heath.

BEST CRITICISMS IN MUSIC.

The East is slowly awakening to the fact that some of the best musical criticism in the country is coming from San Francisco. The East was very loth to admit that San Francisco discovered Tetrazzini, but we simply would not have it otherwise—we were quite firm and insistent in our claims. One of the most important cablegrams of the season has just been received in New York from Hammerstein. It read:

"I have engaged Madame Melba for part of next season. She will come in January, and on several occasions I shall place her and Madame Tetrazzini on the same bill." It is an announcement which has created much excitement in New York.

Another coloratura soprano is Padovani, who has scored a splendid triumph in staid old Boston. One reads that "her showy vocalism carried everything before it with the brilliancy of the trills in the high register. The greatest enthusiasm was evidenced whenever Madame Padovani had the center of the stage." That is a good deal to say of quiet, conservative Boston.

One reads that in America "she has only been heard in New Orleans and San Francisco." Indeed San Francisco, and of course, that means Oakland as well, discovered Padovani.

One's memory goes back to a night in the early winter when many of us were at the Macdonough Theater, and Padovani, whom very few people had heard of before, sang "Lucia" in the well known opera of "Lucia di Lamermoor." There were in the audience the Browns, the Henshaws, the Strongs, the Lunings, the Prathers, Miss Mollie Connors, Miss Thomson, Miss Annie Miller, Paul Miller, the Denisons, the Chabots, the Crellins, Miss Emma and Miss Louise Mahony, the Rosenfelds, the Hushes, General and Mrs. Long, the Frank Havens, the Wickham Havens, the John Smiths—in fact the many people in our city who love music and who always help the cause along whenever they can.

No one had heard specially of Padovani, but after the duet with Edgard in the first act everyone knew that a great artist was among us, and such an enthusiastic outburst greeted her as the staid old Macdonough Theater has rarely known. We gave all sorts of encores; we waved our handkerchiefs wildly and the gallery shrieked "Bravo"—when we say "Bravo" in America we have gone quite mad. And we sent Padovani on her way rejoicing—we did not ask if other people had found her great, nor where she was going—she was "great" for us. And now she is achieving something of the success which crowned Tetrazzini's efforts and we can truthfully say that we are good musical critics, and that we give the artists among us their due meed of appreciation.

Meantime, Tetrazzini, well beloved in San Francisco in the days before the fire, is opening the London season in opera at Covent Garden, ranking side by side with the great Melba, who is to close it.

THOSE MISSED FROM MEETINGS.

Many well known women were missed from the Federation meetings this week—women who heretofore have taken the greatest interest in club work. One reason is that the Home Club is not in the State Federation, consequently its hundreds of members are not taking any part in the week's deliberations. For another reason, "bridge" is of such absorbing interest that the card game is taking precedence over the club meeting.

The largest "bridge" game of the season was that planned by Mrs. Henry Rosenfeld, who entertained last Saturday afternoon at the Ebbell club rooms, eighty guests enjoying her hospitality. Mrs. Rosenfeld is a most charming little hostess, who does nothing better than to make her friends happy, and who is always entertaining in a large way, because "she cannot bear to leave anybody out."

Before the fire the Rosenfelds lived across the bay, and their friends have many pleasant memories of elaborate luncheons and of large card parties at the delightful Palace Hotel.

Mrs. Rosenfeld and the Misses Nicholson are all good bridge players, and the same is true of many of their friends, so Saturday's gathering was specially worthy of note and the eighty guests spent an afternoon of unusual interest. At the close of the bridge game there were elaborate refreshments and an informal reception ended a charming afternoon. Among the handsome costumes of the day were those worn by Mrs. Rosenfeld, Mrs. Wickham Havens, Miss Carrie Nicholson, Miss Belle Nicholson, Mrs. George E. de Golia, Mrs. Allender, Mrs. Albert Long, Mrs. Edward Engs, Miss Christie Taft, Miss Emma Mahoney, Mrs. William Morrison, Mrs. J. Loran Pease, Mrs. George Gross, Mrs. Frederick Morse, Mrs. Edward Howard, Mrs. Oscar Long, Mrs. Robert Fitzgerald, Mrs. Frank Watson, Mrs. Roy Mauvais, Mrs. George Tyson, Mrs. George Hammer, Mrs. Robert Knight, Mrs. E. R. Folger,

Mrs. Henry Dieckmann—and indeed, one might go on indefinitely, when you come to a matter of costume you might easily fill a book.

Mrs. Rosenfeld's prizes were extremely well chosen, there being seventeen tables and a very exquisite prize for each table.

ENTERTAINING WITH BRIDGE.

Another entertaining bridge afternoon was given by Miss Arline Johnson, complimentary to Miss Wells, who was a schoolmate of the Johnsons during the years they spent in Boston. The Johnsons in the Lukens residence on Jackson street, which they have taken for two years, have an admirable place in which to entertain their friends. The Lukens have lived so very quietly in the past few months that nothing in a social way has been going on in the large Jackson street home. Now that the Johnsons are there the old home will take on new aspects and as they are very hospitable one may look for many social dates there next winter.

Miss Johnson's guests included for the most part the young girls who are her friends, and among the interesting girls invited were Miss Harriet and Miss Gladys Meek, Miss Ruth and Miss Rose Kales, Miss Houghton, Miss Katherine Brown, Miss Johanna Volkman, Miss Florence Henshaw, Miss Simpson, Miss Henshaw, Mrs. Harry Chickering—in fact nearly all of the young people who have grown up together and make such an interesting bevy of pretty and attractive girls.

MISS MORSE'S CARD PARTY.

It has really been a great week for bridge, and among the most notable of the afternoons was that planned by Mrs. Frederick Morse for her friends. It began in the simplest way. Mrs. Morse was at Mrs. Rosenfeld's afternoon and asked their friends to play bridge with her one day this week, and then in the good-hearted fashion always characteristic of Mrs. Morse, she began asking others, till she ended by having one of the most brilliant card herings of the season. Her guests were beautifully gowned, all of them were good bridge players and the drawing-room presented one of the very animated scenes of the early summer. It was a thoroughly interesting afternoon, the prizes were lovely, and very elaborate refreshments were served at the close of the card game. The prizes were won by Mrs. Frank Deering, who is one of the best players across the bay; Mrs. Felton Taylor and Mrs. Rosenfeld.

Mrs. Morse, who is a very stunning hostess, was beautifully gowned in blue messalina, trimmed in lace, and she made a most attractive picture against the background of the home, the latter showing an effective scheme of decoration in tones of yellow. Among the many guests of the afternoon were Mrs. John F. Connors, Miss Anita Thomson, Mrs. Felton Taylor, Mrs. Churchill Taylor, Mrs. Harold Havens, Mrs. Henry Rosenfeld, the Misses Nicholson, Mrs. Seth Mann, Mrs. Chas. Lovell, Mrs. W. G. Palmanteer, Mrs. Frank Deering, Mrs. John Maxwell, Mrs. A. S. Larky, Mrs. Willard Williams, Mrs. Frank Miller, Mrs. George Bornemann, Mrs. George de Golla, Mrs. Louise Allender, Mrs. Frank Watson, Mrs. Roland Oliver, Mrs. Koser. It was one of the most delightful card gatherings of the week.

MISS PARDEE AS HOSTESS.

And there are still other card games to chronicle, one of the interesting young hostesses of the week being Miss Florence Pardee, the oldest daughter of Hon. and Mrs. George Pardee. The Pardees were much loved in Sacramento during their four years stay there, and they were constantly being entertained by all the interesting people there and in return the hospitality of the Pardee household was a matter of local history. The friendships formed in the Sacramento days have been kept up and during Federation week there have been many guests from Sacramento in the Pardee home.

Miss Pardee has been entertaining Miss Elsie and Miss Marcella Flint of Sacramento, and in their honor the card game of Wednesday was planned. Hon. and Mrs. George Pardee did not arrive from the East till the day after the party, but Miss Pardee was assisted in receiving her guests by her aunt, Miss Etta Penniman, and by Mrs. Walter Scott, and Mrs. Frederick Morse. Among the guests was Miss Muriel Steele, looking quite as beautiful as when she was abroad, when she made such a sensation in London. Miss Steele was presented at court and was considered one of the most beautiful Americans of the season.

Among the younger girls was Anita Thomson, who played with Miss Steele, their table making a notable study with two very distinctive and most individual types of the pretty American girl.

Among the younger matrons was Mrs. John Connors, who was beautifully gowned, and among the guests whom everyone was delighted to see was Mrs. A. E. Nye, who has many friends in Oakland. The Nyes have made their home in Sacramento for the past five years, but they keep up their old Oakland friendships and receive a warm welcome whenever they come to our city.

In the evening Miss Pardee entertained a number of young girls at supper, and a corresponding number of young men, the affair being informal and most enjoyable.

REQUAS ARE STILL EAST.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Requa and their children are still in the East and they are spending there some most enjoyable spring days. Mr. Requa is driving a large Thomas car and the motor trips planned are proving most enjoyable.

WILL STUDY IN NEW YORK.

Miss Violet Albright left for the East last week, going to New York, where she is to spend some weeks in study. She was to have been accompanied East by Mrs. Ellis and Miss Ellis, mother and sister of Mrs. F. M. Smith. The latter have delayed their departure for another month, and when they go will take with them Mr. Smith's sister.

ENGAGEMENT PLEASES MANY.

The engagement of Mr. Etienne Lanel and Miss Amy McKee, was formally announced last week, and is calling out more than the usual number of good wishes and congratulations. Miss McKee has lived in Oakland all her life, and consequently has a wide circle of very dear family friends.

One hears much in praise of Mr. Lanel, who is the French Consul in New York. He is a gentleman of much social distinction, and a very cultured man, of truly fine characteristics. He was formerly in San Francisco, where he made many friends, and those who had the pleasure of knowing him speak of his great refinement of manner and of his high intellectual attainments.

Miss Amy McKee is the youngest daughter of the McKee household, and all the daughters of the home have been most attractive girls. Sallie McKee married Orestes Pierce, and for years she has had one of the representative homes of Vernon Heights. Miss Nellie McKee is now Mrs. Norman Lang, with an attractive home in Oregon, and now Amy McKee is to marry Mr. Lanel of New York.

Miss McKee has been one of the most attractive of her set of girls, a very stunning girl in many ways. She has exceptionally fine coloring, and at any evening entertainment she easily carries off honors. She sings exceedingly well and is in many ways a very accomplished girl. Miss McKee grew up in the old family home on Adeline street, at the head of which for many years was the late Judge S. B. McKee, a man beloved and respected by all the country round—one of the fairest and one of the ablest judges the State has known. His mantle has fallen on worthy shoulders, on those of his son, Sam Bell McKee. The McKee home represented the highest traditions of Southern hospitality and in it were entertained the best families on either side of the bay.

Business crowded in upon it and for months now the McKees have lived in a picturesque new home on Vernon Heights, where about the middle of June the marriage of Mr. Lanel and of Miss McKee will take place.

The Fred Magees are relatives of the bride-elect and many prominent families here have been friends of the McKee family for years. Among them the Millers, the Pringles, the Henshaws, the Bowles, the McNears.

Mrs. Pringle is planning to entertain at luncheon for Miss McKee and Mrs. Henshaw will also entertain in her honor, in both cases the guests representing mutual dear friends of the hostess and the bride-elect.

There is very little time in which to entertain for Miss McKee, and her days could be filled with dates, for very few brides-elect have so many true friends who wish to express their affection in some appropriate compliment.

DAMROSCH'S ORCHESTRA.

One of the important events of the week was the coming to Berkeley of the New York Symphony Orchestra leader, Walter Damrosch. California does not seem nearly so far away from the center of things now that an orchestra like that can come to our coast.

And we may well be proud indeed of the welcome given the famous leader and his wonderful musicians, for New York and Boston could not have shown more enthusiasm, nor greater appreciation of the splendid musical interpretation of this wonderful body of musicians.

For a long time have we read of the wonderful work of the New York Symphony Orchestra, without dreaming that we would one day hear it for ourselves. And lo, one day it happened to us, and we fared forth to the Greek Theater, where under the most favorable auspices we heard some of the most marvelous music of modern times. We heard something which would not be possible in New York, for there the symphony concerts are given in Carnegie Hall, and here they are given in the Greek Theater, which has the greatest acoustic properties of any open-air theater in the world. Mr. Damrosch was most enthusiastic about it.

One was proud of the great audience which found its way up to the theater in the hills, for there were assembled fully four thousand people, and that did not include a University contingent, since it is vacation time at Berkeley. At first the great audience was a trifle cold, the orchestra had to win its way. It was not accepted simply because it had come from the East, with a well established reputation—this audience would judge for itself. And it did, and one was glad of the splendid burst of enthusiasm which greeted the leadership of Mr. Damrosch and the work of his first violinist.

One might have a word to say in passing over the great helpfulness of the programs, when the theme of each selection is thoroughly explained. One knows then just what the music is trying to interpret, and is able to follow the program with understanding.

One of the most effective numbers, dainty and very exquisite, was "The Dance of the Blessed Spirits," while a number full of fire, closing the program in a volume of grand harmonies, was the "Ride of the Valkyrs," from Wagner.

The applause that followed the program echoed far down the hillside, and Mr. Damrosch and his fellow musicians fully appreciated the ovation they received.

It was a hot day and unusually warm in the Greek Theater, but the latter was most picturesque. The little birds sang joyfully, in a sweet orchestra of their own, and the big theater, with its environment of great trees, with the many hundreds of people, made a picture wonderful in its color tones.

An unusual number of prominent people came from a distance for this symphony concert.

Mrs. Hearst, with a party of friends, motored down from Pleasanton, and was one of the most appreciative listeners at the recital.

It must be remembered that many of us have had good training along symphony lines in the past—a training which was educational in its way and prepared us to appreciate the work of Mr. Damrosch and his orchestra. For a whole winter, every Sunday, hundreds of people listened to beautiful symphonies given at Hearst Hall, made possible by the generosity of Mrs. Hearst.

Later, and for two years now, we have had the superb symphony work of Dr. Wille's orchestra. So it was in a measure a trained audience which greeted the New York Symphony Orchestra. President and Mrs. Benjamin Ide Wheeler gave a luncheon at Berkeley on Thursday before the recital, the guests adjoining later to the Greek Theater. Mrs. Damrosch is an exceedingly interesting woman, and both she and her husband were astonished at the large audience, and full of interest in the picturesque out-of-door theater.

Mrs. A. D. Thomson and Miss Mollie Connors were with a party of friends, and among others present were Judge and Mrs. Yule, Mrs. Clinton Day, Mrs. Charles H. Rowe and Mrs. Griswold. Among the guests from San Francisco were Mrs. Casserly and Miss Margaret Casserly, who are entertaining the Damroschs during their stay in San Francisco, the families being old-time friends.

The next recital of the New York Symphony Orchestra will be given in the Greek Theater on Saturday evening, when a large audience is expected to greet the famous musicians.

MRS. TOWNE'S LUNCHEON.

One of the most interesting luncheons of the week was given at the Fairmont on Thursday, when Mrs. A. N. Towne entertained a number of old friends at luncheon. Most of them were her neighbors before the great fire destroyed those splendid California homes which adorned "Nob Hill." Mrs. Towne has been much away from San Francisco in the past two years—at her ranch in the south and at Del Monte.

The luncheon at the Fairmont was planned on a most elaborate scale, and it was most enjoyable, because so many of the matrons gathered at the table were old friends.

From Oakland were Mrs. George McNear and Mrs. Isaac Requa, the latter always a responsive and most appreciative guest. And it must be said of her that she is always beautifully and appropriately gowned. Mrs. George McNear is another guest whom her friends delight to entertain, for she is very sweet to them all.

The table was exceedingly pretty, a study in pink, the center piece being a great bowl of pink blossoms.

Mrs. Towne was assisted in receiving her guests by her daughter, Mrs. Clinton Worden. Both of them are often welcome guests at Highlands.

STATE FEDERATION MEETINGS.

The State Federation is absorbing the interest of many women this week, and it has been so thoroughly exploited in the papers that there seems little to add of interest. At first it threatened to be most disappointing, for the reports of the various officers did not seem to show anything specially accomplished during the year—any principle, or any new line of work for which the Federation was striving. The reports seemed to be just a record of letters received and sent out, without any special mention of what might be in the letters. Two reports struck different key notes—Mrs. Bulkley's and Mrs. Woodbury's.

Mrs. Bulkley is accomplishing a great deal in establishing clubhouses for the girls at Berkeley, where they can live together economically and at the same time be carefully chaperoned, living as comfortably in their clubhouse as they would at home. It is a sort of dormitory system, planned along the best possible lines, and it is work for which the clubwomen might most gladly stand responsible.

Mrs. Woodbury is, without doubt, one of the brightest clubwomen in the entire State—in fact, she has been considered the most brilliant club president. Ebell simply rang with the most spontaneous merriment it has heard in many a day. Members simply shrieked with laughter over Mrs. Woodbury's report as one of the vice presidents.

It came in what she called "a catechism," and part of it was as follows: "What was expected of you in the beginning?"

"Nothing."

"Were you ever called upon to take the place of the president?"

"Never."

"What have you accomplished in the past year?"

"Nothing."

The shout of merriment that greeted that frank summary could have been heard afar, and round upon round of applause greeted Mrs. Woodbury, but she would not respond to this great spontaneous encore, the only one of the meeting.

The social phase of the Federation was concentrated in the big reception, which was a very crowded affair, like the ones across the bay in "fleet week."

It is really one of the mysteries of modern times, why some women cannot be prevailed upon to take off their hats at an evening reception. They seem to cling to them with all their dread might, and go about serene in their unconsciousness that they are not correctly costumed.

Hats simply spoiled the two receptions across the bay, and "the halted woman" of the Ebell reception was distinctly in poor taste.

One might surely remember such a simple formula as "hats on for luncheons and teas, and hats off at an evening reception," but I suppose it's the old story of "Vanity Fair"—the woman who looks well in her hat is going to keep it on, regardless of what it may cost her in the opinion of her neighbors.

The program which opened the reception was very good, indeed, especially the exceedingly humorous monologues of clever Mrs. Edward Gibson, who was formerly bright Hope Woodbury.

The first day of the Federation was disappointing, but it was made up by the second day's program.

And now the members are looking forward with the greatest pleasure to Saturday, when Mrs. Warren S. Palmer will entertain two hundred guests on a trip to picturesque Santa Rosa.

Mrs. Palmer is one of the very brightest clubwomen about the bay, and a hostess who is sure to plan one of the most delightful of times for her many guests.

CHORAL CLUBS FINE WORK.

Perhaps the most delightful phase of the Federation events has been the splendid singing of the Women's Choral Club of Ebell. It is developing a chorus sure to be considered in the musical progress of our city. Of course, it owes its success in a great measure to the splendid leadership of Paul Steindorff, and the results have been worthy of all praise.

The selections were most dignified, in keeping with the occasion, and the ensemble work was exceedingly fine, the chorus being well balanced.

The contraltos were led by such splendid voices as those of Mrs. Frederick Stratton and Mrs. George Jensen, and among the sopranos were Mrs. Newton Koser, Mrs. Charles H. Rowe, Mrs. Edgar Bishop, Miss May Coogan, Mrs. T. C. Coogan, Mrs. Hayward Thomas, Mrs. Arthur Munson and many other well-known members of Ebell.

One hears that the cantata which the Choral Section will give next Tuesday evening is exceptionally fine, and an appreciative audience ought to greet the work of Director Steindorff and his chorus.

GOOD WORK FOR ANIMALS.

Mrs. Arthur Holland has been spending some days in town, having come up from Brookdale in the interests of the "Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals."

It is a society that has accomplished a wonderful amount of good, and each year it has much to show in the way of the earnest effort of the officers.

Among those who have been most helpful in promoting the good cause have been Mrs. Arthur Holland, Mrs. Joseph Mathews and Mrs. William Hakston.

The society begins a new year of work, and it deserves the encouragement of all of us, for it is a worthy cause.

COUNTRY HOMES BEING OPENED.

And so the spring days lead us on to the summer near at hand. Country homes are being opened, and while we do not do exactly the same things as in winter, there is a change of activities only.

"Labor conquers all" is an old California motto. While the true Californians adds: "And a merry heart worketh wonders."

HAVEMEYERS ARE BACK.

After some months spent at Burlingame, Mrs. Havemeyer and her daughters have returned to Oakland and are staying for the present at the Country Club.

The Misses Havemeyer are sending out cards for bridge for the coming week, and will entertain their friends at the Country Club.

KUTZ GO ACROSS THE BAY.

Admiral and Mrs. Kutz have gone to San Francisco, where their permanent residence will hereafter be. They have taken the Admiral Trilley home on Pacific avenue, and their daughter, Mrs. Arthur Crist, will be with them, as the Wisconsin, Lieutenant Crist's ship, will go to the Orient with the Atlantic squadron.

MRS. MORSE ENTERTAINS.

On Thursday Mrs. Frederick Morse entertained at a large bridge party, some six tables of players assembling. This is the second or third bridge party which Mrs. Morse has given this season.

MISS HALL ENTERTAINS.

Miss Harriet Hall entertained six tables of bridge at the Claremont Club on Saturday afternoon. Among the players were Mrs. William Henshaw, Mrs. Frank L. Brown, Mrs. George Hammer and Miss Georgia Strong.

BRIDGE FOR CHARITY.

Miss Amy Gunn gave a large bridge for charity on Tuesday, entertaining about eighty players. The Gunn home across the bay is a commodious structure and the twenty tables were easily scattered through the large rooms. The affair was for the benefit of the California Girls' Training Home which was also benefitted by the Punch and Judy show at the recent Arbor Villa Pete. About sixty-five

FLORAL EXHIBIT ATTRACTS MANY

H. H. Lilienthal's New Method of Grafting Roses to Prevent Mildew Watched With Interest.

MELROSE May 23.—The floral exhibition which is being given here by the Horticultural Society is attracting a good deal of attention and drawing many visitors. The doors were opened this morning at 10 o'clock.

The announcement that H. H. Lilienthal that would demonstrate this afternoon at 3 o'clock for the first time his method of grafting roses to prevent mildew drew a good attendance. He was watched in his work with much interest.

Among the many new and rare plants on exhibition today was a new creation, a highly improved and beautiful new Lady Washington geranium, which was named Melrose. Thomas Hooper of Elmhurst is the lucky man who has this new creation on exhibition. The deadly poisonous plant Euphorbia esula is on exhibition also in full bloom.

Conspicuous among the flowers were the green rose and the black calla lily.

$7000 STOLEN AUTO COMPLETELY WRECKED

SAN JOSE May 23.—A $7000 automobile the property of John R. Chace, vice-president of the Santa Clara County Auto Club, was stolen last night from in front of the Empire Theater by a man who headed immediately for San Francisco, but ran into a tree near Santa Clara, completely smashing the machine.

People who saw the big car racing out along the San Francisco road, just prior to the accident, say that the man was driving the machine at a forty mile an-hour clip.

MRS. J. J. LERRI, now at 512 Second street, Oakland, is now preparing to order promptly for steam carpet cleaning, renovating, etc. Most reasonable charges. No longer in retail carpet business at 356 Clay street. Phone 2034 or Home A361.

FACTS FOR YOU.

During 1907 over $28,000,000 were paid in pay rolls in Oakland. This of course does not include the amount paid by contractors for labor used in the construction of buildings. Still this figure, by calling for articles made in Greater Oakland and vicinity. The sanitary laws require better products and only white labor is considered by the firms whose ads appear here.

Over 500 manufacturing, jobbing and wholesale concerns are located in Alameda county. The pay rolls disbursed amount to over $850,000 per month. This immense disbursement means the maintenance of thousands of homes, the employment of thousands of mechanics in construction work.

Consider the value of these factories and jobbing institutions. Call for the brands they handle. Build up home industry. Don't send to San Francisco or Los Angeles for goods made here. Insisting upon home products you are building up your own interests, giving employment to your own friends and relatives and increasing your own property values.

Oakland has fifteen miles of waterfront affording unexcelled factory sites for thousands of manufacturers. More than 200 manufacturers are located in Oakland at the present time. There still remain many unoccupied sites for the establishment of new manufacturing with the advantage of rail and water transportation.

The total tonnage of vessels other than the ferries and regular daily steamers docking in Oakland amounted to 1,049,975 during the year 1907. There was a total of 2120 vessels as follows: Steamers 1707, schooners 299, ships 61, barges 24, scows 12, barges 7, brigs 2, transports 2, tug boats 1, and cutters 1. The above figures do not include tug boats towing vessels to and from the wharves.

The ship yards of Oakland annually build many vessels and ferry boats and the largest marine railway on the coast is the Estuary are scores of small and large manufacturing concerns. Beginning at the extreme north of Alameda county are three large power and acid works and a varied line of industries lead from here to the Gas Engine works on the south.

There are 35,000 mechanics in Oakland and that means 10,000 good homes well cared for and thousands of happy children and bright faces, getting an education. Glance over the list and see what is being made in your line.
